BROKERS' loans, borrowed for stock investment and speculation, dropped seven hundred million dollars in a week a very "bull" point.

General Motors declared an extra dividend of thirty cents that will give stockholders in a few days $12,900,000 more than they would have had ordinarily. That was cheerful news.

THE powers of government and finance did something about the shrinkage in stock values and public confidence Thursday. A lower income tax was announced. And later came a lowering of the rediscount rate to four and one-half per cent. All that will help.

Important thing is for the public to come out of its hysteria and realize that the foolishness of a few gamblers does not justify throwing away securities for less than their value.

Don't gamble, and don't be panic-stricken.

ALL kinds of plus signs appeared in the stock list. Up 3, up 104, up 134, up 17. It was a regular up, up, day, a sort of "excelsior" poem in Wall Street.

Those that had mourned, rejoiced. And some of the bears that had rejoiced, mourned.

BY way of comfort, a Wall Street writer tells you: "The panic of 1837 came to an end."
The panic of 1857 came to an end.
The panic of 1873 came to an end.
The panic of 1893 came to an end.

The panic of 1907 came to an end.
And the panic of 1929 will come to an end.

CERTAINLY it may have ended now. It wasn't a panic based on conditions that usually cause panics. It was a toppling over of pyramided gambling that had to topple.

Panics come to an end, but unfortunately human foolishness does not come to an end.

THE governments of Turkey and Persia protest against "misrepresentations by American rug and carpet manufacturers marketing products under Oriental names."

No American merchant-of-consequence misrepresents goods. Americans are manufacturing rugs and carpets, superb in color and wearing qualities, that will take the place of Oriental rugs in time. Ask James Simpson, of Chicago, for details.

ONCE the Romans drank only Greek wines, thinking their own inferior.

Later French aristocrats accepted only Italian wines, although their own were admirable.

This country's wealthy would drink only French claret and champagne, although we made good wine here until prohibition came along.

Before long Americans will realize that their own rugs and carpets are as good as any in the world.

CHARLES E. HUGHES made a good speech on Wednesday, demanding more generous endowment of women's education.

Seven leading women's colleges have not one-tenth the endowment of the seven leading men's colleges.

That is extremely foolish, for the mothers of the human race are at least ten times as important as the fathers.

What women learn they remember and tell to their children. What men learn they forget in business and don't tell anybody.

VENIZELLOS, prime minister and ablest man in Greece, knows what airplanes will mean when war comes.

He will establish a separate air ministry, and run it himself.

President Hoover, able engineer, ought to have a separate air ministry as one of three branches of a national defense system, and be his own air minister. Nobody could do the work better. A sub-secretary could look after details.

JUST now, as you know, the Red Cross is making a drive for more members, and more money. The president urges all to join.

Some busy gentleman in Wall Street felt uneasy when a huge Red Cross flag was seen floating over the Stock Exchange. It recalled, painfully, battle, war, sudden death.

However, prices went up, so the flag was a good omen.

THE senate, refusing to adjourn on November 23, by a vote of 52 to 34, will go on working at the tariff.

European countries, afraid of higher duties had refused to hear of the adjournment and a more or less feeble move to boycott Uncle Sam was abandoned.

It may be taken up again.

MAN IN CAR

Mrs. Louise Horton Is Victim at Her- ington.

HERINGTON, Kas., Nov. 16.—(INS.)—Mrs. Louise Horton, said to be of Kansas City, was shot and killed here last night when she was alleged to have threatened to kill the sheriff of Dickinson county, who was questioning her and a man concerning liquor, which the sheriff believed to be in their motor car.

The woman in the car, Mrs. Horton, said something to Howard, who started to drive off. Sheriff Dederick jumped on the running board of the car while Howard drove to the center of the town. All this time Mrs. Horton is said to have had a gun pressed against Sheriff Dederick.

"I'm going to kill you," the woman is alleged to have said after ordering him to jump from the motor car.

At this the sheriff is reported to have pulled his own gun which he is alleged not to have flourished until after the threat and shot Mrs. Horton, killing her.

Secretary J. W. Good Sleeps Peacefully After Night of Pain

GRAVELY ILL

Slight Improvement Noted by Physicians In His Pulse and Temperature.

HOOVER GOES TO BEDSIDE

Cabinet Member Gets Natural Rest After Specialists Feared End Near.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—(INS.)—Blood poisoning has developed in the system of James W. Good, 63, secretary of war, and "only his own resistance, coupled with the treatment administered," will save his life, President Hoover was told this afternoon.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—(INS.)—James W. Good, secretary of war, was peacefully sleeping at Walter Reed hospital at 10:30 a. m. today when his physicians gathered outside the sickroom for a consultation. A slight improvement was noted in his pulse and temperature.

After a night that caused the specialists to fear the end was near and brought President Hoover to his bedside, the cabinet member went to sleep at 9 o'clock.

This was his second natural rest since 6 a. m. when he awakened from a slumber that started at 2. His natural sleeping is the best thing that can happen, his physicians reported to Mr. Hoover. They hope it will return to him some of the strength he lost during the night in his restlessness with pain. Operations were finally administered to quiet him.

Dr. John M. T. Finney, Johns Hopkins hospital specialist, has returned to Baltimore. He said the physicians here have done everything possible. He was hurriedly summoned here last night for a consultation at the hospital.

FARMER AID WRITTEN INTO TARIFF BILL

Senate Votes to Retain Agricultural Benefits.

AGRARIANS GLAD

Amendments Adopted Raising House Rates.

By WILLIAM S. NEAL.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—(INS.)—The highest tariff barriers ever erected by congress for the benefit of American farmers were written into the Hawley-Smoot tariff bill today with completion of the chief agricultural sections of the senate.

The senate not only retained the major increases proposed for agriculture by the house but adopted a score of amendments raising other house rates. In only a few instances were spokesmen for the great consuming centers successful in blocking boosts.

With the adoption of minor amendments today, the senate was still confronted with the related agricultural schedules of tobacco and sugar. Neither was embraced in the original "farm bloc" program to boost the agricultural rates to a parity with industry in conformity with the special session call of President Hoover.

Although "farm bloc" members proclaimed the result a sweeping victory for agriculture, there was some dissatisfaction even in a bloc's ranks over the boosts.

Senator Norbeck (R., of South Dakota) declared that some agricultural rates had been lifted out of reason and Senator Wheeler (D.) of Montana asserted "we have gone to the extreme in fixing rates."

At the same time Senator Glass (D.) of Virginia criticized the senate by declaring the great American consuming public "hasn't got a chance on earth here."

Man Is Fined $100 On Liquor Charge

FROMM JURY AT CLEVELAND IN DEADLOCK

Deliberations Resumed In Canton Bribery Case.

$400 "CUT" COUNT

Disagreement Reported About Dictograph Conversation.

CLEVELAND, Nov. 16.—(INS.)—Deadlocked after eight hours of deliberation, the jury trying the bribery case of Charles A. Fromm, Stark county commissioner, was ordered locked up last night to resume deliberations at 8:30 a. m. today.

Disagreement among the jurors was reported to have settled about the testimony of witnesses and the dictograph conversation between Fromm and agents of the Colson-Cleveland Company, from whom the commissioner was accused of having demanded a "cut" on a contract awarded for equipment for the Molly Stark sanitarium.

The jurors requested a copy of the verbal testimony of witnesses and the dictograph conversation last night, but Judge Irving Carpenter replied it was impossible to furnish either.

The state contended in its case that Fromm had threatened to hold up payment on a bill of the Colson company for sanitarium equipment unless he received $400 or at least $200. Fromm on the witness stand admitted he wanted the money and that he would have accepted it from the agents but that he didn't consider it a bribe and that it would not have influenced his actions as a member of the Stark county board of commissioners.

Defense attorneys asserted that in case of a conviction they will carry the case to higher courts.

WALL STREET GETS RESPITE

Feeling of Relief as Stock Exchange Closes.

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—(INS.)—There being no session of the New York Stock Exchange today, brokers and their overworked employees enjoyed another welcome respite. They were at their offices, however, catching up on accumulated tasks.

Throughout Wall street there was a distinct feeling of relief and optimism—in sharp contrast to the situation a week and two weeks ago. The rally in prices yesterday and the day before has had the effect of bringing about a decided change of front. Pessimism has given way to optimism and the general belief is that the situation as regards the stock market will continue to show a steady gradual improvement.

President Hoover's action in calling a "prosperity" conference of the nation's leading business men at Washington next week was also regarded as another important factor tending to create additional confidence in the future.

The leading bankers, who had been watching the trend of the stock market with concern, now feel that the situation is almost normal.

Boy Scout, Called "Lindy" When He Smiles

In Face of Death, Succumbs In Bethesda

Three-year-old Coasting Accident Fatal.

BETHESDA, O., Nov. 16.—(INS.)—A Boy Scout, who earned the name of "Lindy" because he smiled daily in the face of death, will be laid to rest here this afternoon. His fellow scouts will act as pallbearers.

The lad is Ogle Hilles Wine-man, 15. He had been dying for three years. He was aware of it, yet he had a smile for everyone.

Ogle was hurt while coasting during the 1926 holidays. In sliding down a hill on a sled his knees struck the ground.

The injury was regarded as insignificant until a few days later when his knees began swelling and doctors could do nothing for him.

Ogle was successful in passing several merit badge tests conducted by his "buddies" at his bedside.

He never forgot that "a Scout is brave." His smiles became more frequent.

Slowly the poison in his knees worked through his body. Nothing changed the lad. He smiled until pain made it impossible for his face to bear anything except lines of worry. Yet he tried to smile. It was a wistful, weak attempt, but yet he smiled, sometimes with tears in his eyes. The end came Thursday.

PROBLEM OF UNOCCUPIED SCHOOL WORRIES LISBON VILLAGE BOARD

LISBON, O., Nov. 16.—As a result of the consolidation of the Mt. Pleasant school zone with the Lisbon district, the Lisbon board of education has an unoccupied one-room building on its hands. The problem has been referred to Assistant Prosecuting Attorney George L. Lafferty.

The situation is unusual, in that the board of education does not plan the erection of any new building. Had this scheme been in mind, the Mt. Pleasant building and land could be sold at public auction and the money applied to the cost of a new school or placed in the sinking fund.

Should the state department of industrial relations condemn the building, it could be razed.

Unless the building is condemned, the property must be held for four years before it can be advertised for sale.

Mt. Pleasant children are now attending Lisbon schools.

Forest Love

Thrilling Story of Romance of Modern Girl

By Hazel Livingston

What Has Gone Before. Nancy Hollenbeck, young, beautiful and romantic, becomes cynical when her mother warns her against marrying a poor man. She causes comment when she gives up Mat Tully and accepts the ardent attentions of Jack Beamer, who plans to divorce his rich wife to marry Nancy. On a mountain trip with relatives, Nancy toys with the affections of a handsome ranger, Roger Decatur. In spite of her expressed desire to marry for riches only, she suddenly gives way to Roger's passionate love making and marries him. At first she is happy in his mountain cabin, but when he leaves on a long trip, she flees to her home. Without informing her family of her marriage, she re-enters the old social life. At a party, Jack Beamer monopolizes her. But Nancy repulses Beamer's affectionate embraces. At home Nancy's letters from Decatur arouse her mother's suspicions. Nancy almost tells her secret. But even Louise shows no interest when Nancy mentions the ranger.

Now Go On With The Story.

"Hollenbeck? Sign here, please!" Nancy sighed. She accepted the big striped box gingerly, as if it had been a bomb, likely to go off at any moment. The fourth in four days. This would have to stop. Things couldn't go on like this.

"More flowers?" papa looked up over his spectacles. Nancy giggled helplessly. "Is it a joke, or a bet or what?" "I think it's a mistake," she said. "I don't want anything," she said quickly. "Papa, you shouldn't wear a collar that's all 'rayed' like that! It's a disgrace. And that awful necktie!" He grinned. "No one is going to look at an old fellow like me. Not while I have a couple of pretty girls they can look at instead."

SOVIET TRADE PLANS WORRY MOSCOW HEADS

German Press Attacks "Pro-American" Policy.

MEETINGS FAIL
Favorable Balance of Trade Russian Problem.

MOSCOW.—The unsatisfactory state of German-Soviet trade relations, which has given rise to German press attacks against the alleged "pro-American" trade policy of the Soviet government and its insistence on a favorable balance of trade, is causing considerable worry in Moscow. Mutual discussion of the problem and possible remedies have failed to dispel German pessimism.

M. G. Gurevich, director of the Foreign department of the Supreme Economic Council, and other trade officials have placed the blame on German industrialists.

At a recent meeting of the Western Chamber of Commerce, attended by German business and diplomatic representatives stationed in Moscow, M. Gurevich said that trade relations between the two countries were hampered first by the refusal, or at least reluctance, of German industrialists to reveal their manufacturing secrets so that Soviet engineers might copy them, and secondly, by the German misconception of the needs of Soviet industry, based upon the false idea that Russia is and will remain an agricultural country.

"We have no desire to discriminate against Germany," M. Gurevich said, but we do insist on our right to industrialize our country, even though the attempt upsets the prognostications of capital economists. And having embarked on this policy of rapid industrialization, we naturally buy where we get the most for our money.

"I cannot conceal the fact that in the United States we have met with a greater response to our needs than in Germany or other European countries. American manufacturers are not so reluctant to show us the methods by which they achieved success. In fact Americans believe that a minute understanding of their manufacturing methods and skill is the best advertising medium for American goods."

A bulletin of the State bank in discussing the general import program of the Soviets makes it clear that all foreign countries cannot hope to boost their exports to Russia. If one country increases its trade, it will be at the expense of others.

"Practically every year," the bulletin said, "the import plans of various government trusts are drastically reduced since in their aggregate they exceed the export resources and foreign currency reserves of the country. It should be pointed out, however, that in actual figures the foreign currency reserves are growing."

Want Independence. This desire to make the Soviet Union independent of foreign capitalist countries was touched upon also by M. Gurevich when he told German business men that more and more emphasis is being laid on the purchase of technical aid abroad than upon the purchase of goods.

In the fiscal year which began Oct. 1 he estimated that the Soviet government would spend 40,000,000 rubles (nominally $20,000,000) for engineering advice.

Sixty technical air contracts have been concluded with foreign engineering firms so far. Half of them are German. But German business men pointed out that technical air contracts don't help solve the problem of finding markets for the Reich's surplus industrial production and employment.

The only solution which might be satisfactory to both parties is a combination of technical advice and sale of goods as Ford and the General Electric company have done.

Money For Santa Claus

Yuletide buying in the East Liverpool district should be stimulated within the next two weeks, for three banks will drop approximately $263,000 into the stocking of Santa Claus in the form of Christmas savings club checks.

While the exact figures have not been announced, these "greeting" checks, representing savings during the last 50 weeks, will be mailed to probably 5,000 persons, who, in turn, will spend no small of it in Christmas buying.

East Liverpool thus receives part of the $6,000,000 which will be distributed to 9,000,000 members of Christmas clubs by more than 8,000 banks and financial institutions. This record distribution is ten per cent in excess of last year's report and more than five times the amount accumulated in 1920.

At least 35 per cent of the money will be expended in Christmas purchases, while the remainder will be used for permanent savings and investments, year-end commitments, insurance premiums, mortgages and interest, taxes, education and travel and charity.

The plan, introduced 19 years ago, as a simple and practical method of systematically accumulating funds for Christmas needs, has proved a factor in stabilizing prosperity throughout the maintaining of buying power during the holiday season. East Liverpool's share of the fund should make Santa Claus happy.

Old Vienna Town

News of unrest comes regularly from Vienna, Austria's capital. Student revolts are frequent; a movement for the restoration of the Hapsburg line to their ancestral domains is heard of occasionally. Socialists and Fascists clash in the streets. Chancellor Schober is harassed by the reactionary Fascists who demand sweeping changes in the constitution of the country. Semi-military groups are fully armed and civil war is never an impossibility.

Vienna has always been a diplomatic hotbed. It is the storied city of international intrigue and wily statesmen. Still the city is one of the gayest capitals in the world. Her operas are always crowded and her beer gardens are filled with eager crowds who partake of schnapps and applaud the five-piece orchestras which really play excellent music. Beautiful woods and the government buildings of stone make her a city distinguished for beauty. The scenes of most of the old-fashioned light operas were laid in Vienna, with the poor peasant girl and her princely lover having the leading roles.

The old city has weathered many storms. The raging Turk has thundered at her eastern gates and revolution has belabored her with martial law, but the scars of former conflicts are not visible. The Hungarians, one of the noblest of the peoples of southeastern Europe, once were dispossessed of their property in Vienna, but they quickly made themselves new homes and the evidences of the hardships they suffered are no longer discernible, although the event is not a dozen years past.

Always the home of musicians, Vienna has developed a style of music which is distinctly original. The melodies of Franz Schubert and the Strauss of the past, and the music of Lehar and Walmans of our own times is always associated with the city. These little disturbances in Vienna are nothing new. They may have great consequences later, but Vienna will quickly be adapted to any radical changes. Under a monarch, or as a republic Vienna is inherently a rollicking capital, populated with people who are eager to live and laugh.

A Mighty Project

Several years ago, Stanley Baldwin, then prime minister of Great Britain, appointed three commissions to give concentrated study to one of the most ambitious engineering projects ever conceived—a tunnel under the English channel, connecting England with France. One commission was to devote its entire attention to the military aspects of the project, the second to study the political phases, and the third was to look into the economic possibilities of such a tunnel, were it ever to be completed.

The general nature of the findings of these groups seems to be known, although they have not, as yet, been officially filed. As far as the political and military aspects are concerned, no strong case can be worked out against the tunnel. The prime consideration is the possibility of attack on England from forces coming over from the continent, but it is obvious that such a move would be utterly disastrous to those who entrusted themselves to the cramped space within the tube.

The third commission's report, however, is known in advance to be unfavorable. It seems no prospect that the use of such a tunnel would be large enough to insure any adequate return on the huge investment required. They release the opinion that it would merely be another heavy burden on the British taxpayers.

Such an opinion was to be expected and in all probability it will be many years before excavation for any kind of tunnel under the English channel is authorized. The world, awaiting the development of such a project, may become impatient, but it is England that has the most at stake. In any case, an international tunnel is a case where enthusiasm should not be allowed to run ahead of solid business judgment and British common sense.

HASKIN LETTER DAILY

By Frederic J. Haskin

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 16.—Increasing attention is being given by American industrialists and exporters to the growth of cartels in Europe since the war. The effects which these highly organized international agreements on prices and quotas have on American foreign trade are being studied with no little curiosity. A cartel is an organization not only of competing industries within a nation but crossing international boundaries. Output is limited and prices are fixed. Then, too, territory is allocated, units of the industries agreeing to confine their sales efforts to particular regions.

Probably the most compact cartel in Europe is the Franco-German cartel which controls the potash deposits of Alsace-Lorraine. Prior to 1924 when the present cartel was organized the Germans on the one hand and the French on the other engaged in cutthroat competition. The companies of the two countries now are in an agreement whereunder they keep out of each others markets and as these particular deposits supply 95 per cent of the world's potash, it can be seen that they exercise a measure of dictation which is practically absolute.

The cartel which seems to offer American industry the greatest threat, however, is the International Steel Entente. Nine European countries belong to it and they represent a full third of the world's steel output. It is scarcely likely that our own market could be successfully invaded by this European steel trust but it is quite within reason that our own growing export trade in iron and steel could be checked. Indeed, the International Steel Entente already has made inroads into the South American market. The steel industries of the nine countries have agreed to regulate production, the fixing of prices, and the division of territory.

There is no legal bar to American companies joining such cartels for purposes of export. The Sherman law forbids such combinations in our domestic trade but not in connection with selling abroad. This might work to the advantage of a relatively weak company or one wholly inexperienced in the foreign trade. But the disadvantage would lie in the fact that upon entering the arrangement the American company would be tied up in an agreement limiting its output. In fact American companies have joined five European cartels, those controlling copper, electric light bulbs, aluminum, zinc, and borax.

One of the largest cartels is that producing rayon. Great Britain, Germany, and Italy compose it and through financial relationship subsidiary companies are producing a large part of the rayon being made in this country.

European cartels now cover, in addition to those mentioned, steel rails, screws, enamel ware, iron tubes, bottles of calcium, glue, and wire.

Conditions are not precisely the same in the United States as they are in Europe. Europe's immediate post-war difficulty was over-production in many lines. The populations had been so impoverished by the war that they had a greatly impaired purchasing power. And while doubtless the people would have been glad to have more things they were unable to buy them. The great plants which had been built up during the war had to turn to peacetime production and there arose a disparity between the productive capacity and the effectual demand.

Moreover, world markets had been disrupted during the war, colonies lost in some cases, and all manner of dislocations to trade occurred. In such a situation the companies merged to save themselves and coming thus under a centralized management it was possible to control production and maintain a better balance between output and the exploitable market.

Then, too, the advantage of having international price and distribution agreements is far more marked in Europe than in the United States. Here we are sufficiently removed by the ocean from the sort of immediate competition which European companies have that no such pressure is felt.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre.

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—Chinatown is only a shell of former opulence, but remains the most carefully policed section in New York. Time after time when Chinatown's long fires seemed extinguished, they were found to be only smoldering.

Hatchet men and their allies with sawed off shot guns would suddenly appear from mysterious passages and the crooked gray streets would run red. Then the carnage would dry up and disappear like a rain drop on a parched desert.

Even the most adroit "stoof pigeons" have never been able to tip off an impending battle. One minute Chinatown seemed to nod in a dreamy escape from reality and the next it would ring with crescendo shouts of victors mingled with the groans of vanquished.

Before the reserves arrived from the Elizabeth street station around the corner, Chinatown is revealing its sullen indifference and sleepy blink. Nine patrolmen and six plain clothes men are roaming the streets of the quarter every hour of day and night.

In addition there are sixteen special detectives, changed frequently, and a squad of narcotics clerks detailed there at all times. The Chinese Merchants association, which actually governs the district, also has a quota of carefully selected informers.

Nearly all the gambling houses, opium dens and brothels which were a part of old Chinatown have moved to New Jersey. On Sunday former residents return to promenade and discuss news of their native land. What is left of Chinatown is supported by yam wagon tourists.

There are professional cicerones who give sing song lectures in the joss house and there are under-actress lie in banks feigning poppy addiction. But only when a tong war blazes, is there excitement in Mott, Doyers or Pell street any more.

Tong men are not considered outlaws by the Chinese. A tong is a commercial organization. Business enterprises are dominated by them and a Chinaman must be identified with a tong or he cannot get a job.

YOUR HEALTH

An Ounce of Prevention is Worth a Pound of Cure.

By Dr. Royal S. Copeland

It is possible too much space is devoted to the ill effects of meat eating. It is unfair to charge against this one ingredient of the meal a majority of the ailments that may be traced to foods. As a matter of fact, accidental contamination is just as likely to occur by taking some article that comes from the vegetable world.

Do you ever speculate on what will become of the human race? Its most formidable foes are not the great animals of sea and forest. The elements are capable of sending flood and storm and quake, but all such evils are localized. They are never widespread in their terrifying effects.

As I view it, the tiny pests, the insects, bacteria and germs, the microscopic organisms, will determine the fate of the human family. The things we cannot see are our real, our deadly enemies.

On my farm in the country are the decaying stumps of a hundred chestnut trees. Twenty years ago they were giants in the forest, supplying bushels of edible nuts. Not one tree is alive today. Not one is left in New Jersey, Pennsylvania, New York and New England. They were killed by invisible organisms.

Man is the ready victim of many minute agents of disease. The things that serve him as food are susceptible to contamination and destruction by similar organisms. Unless we are most watchful the foods that are common articles of diet may become the carriers of disease. We read every day about cases of "food poisoning." Why is it?

Some of the unfriendly organisms I have mentioned may find their way into the food we are to buy. The vast majority of food poisoning comes from contamination of this sort.

By taking such a food we get either the disease producing agents themselves or the poisons they have generated in the substance. In either case the manner in which the food is held has established its poisonous effects. The temperature has been maintained at a point where the incubation of the bacteria is inevitable.

It is not meat alone that can become harmful. Indeed, since we eat more of other things than we do meat it is more than likely that some other food is the one which may produce the trouble.

Every effort must be made to guard the food supply. The public officials will take care of it outside the home, but after it passes your threshold the responsibility is yours. Good health and long life depend on vigilance in this matter.

Answers To Health Queries.

Mrs. B. R. Q.—What can be done for cracked, sore heels, callouses and corns on the feet? My feet pain.

A.—Bathing the feet in warm water to which a little alum has been added should be soothing. Change the shoes and stockings frequently. The callouses may be relieved by soaking the feet in warm water and soap and applying warm linseed oil, before going to bed. The next morning soak, the feet again and scrape away the dead tissue.

M. E. H. Q.—What should a girl of 5 ft. 4 in. weigh?

2.—What do you advise for whiteheads?

A.—Since you did not state your age I cannot advise you along these lines.

2.—Proper diet and regular elimination should keep the complexion clear and healthy.

The Case of Mr. Koga.

The board of review of the department of labor has determined that Japanese newspaper correspondents may enter this country and remain here indefinitely. The decision was reached in the case of Kimaki Koga, who declined to be admitted as a temporary visitor who would have to have his visa extended from time to time. He appealed from the decision of the immigration authorities in Los Angeles, saying he was entitled to admittance as a business man under the terms of the commercial treaty and this contention has now been sustained.

The decision is a fortunate one. We exclude oriental labor and are justified in doing so by social as well as economic considerations; but the law has been intended to act as a bar to the healthy intellectual contact provided by the residence here of correspondents from oriental lands. Had any one imagined when the exclusion law was enacted that it could be interpreted as interfering with the activities of such men as Koga, it is certain that the law or the treaty would have made a special exception in their behalf.

Fortunately, our relations with Japan have not been adversely affected by this incident. The last thing the people of the United States wish to do is to give offense to the people of Japan. Without in any way weakening our position on the desirability of wholesale Japanese immigration, we might well examine the law with a view to removing from it any needless assaults upon Japanese national pride. As a matter of fact, we could well afford to admit Japanese on a quota basis like that applied to citizens of other lands. The number of Japanese admitted would be a few hundred each year and their admission would remove a possible source of irritation. —Chicago Tribune.

Looting The Russian Peasant. If it is true, as a dispatch from Russia says, that Moscow has "declared war upon the Russian peasant," and is about to confiscate half his produce and buy the remainder at its own price, the world may see some interesting developments in the land of the Slavs within the next few months. The Russian farmer peasant never has been particularly enamored of the bolshevik regime. He hasn't cared for its communist program, and he hasn't embraced its anti-religious ideas with any enthusiasm. At times he has hoarded his grain and has refused to show any sympathy when hungry Red leeches in the towns have clamored for a share. On the whole the strain between the communist organization and the peasant has been rather considerable and has been a great trouble to the Moscow gang.

Apparently that crowd has now decided to quit pleading and employing diplomatic and half-way measures and is turning to desperate policies. The program indicated in the Russia dispatch is nothing more or less than a wholesale looting scheme, designed to feed the cities at the expense of the country. The only excuse for it, is the danger that unless something of the sort is done the towns will starve this winter. How much resistance the peasants may put up, and how successful a fight they can make will probably depend upon their capacity for organization, and upon the extent to which Moscow may be able to turn its organized military force against them to compel obedience. Presumably Moscow thinks it is in a position to exercise duress. Certainly it has worked hard to build up an army of oppression. —Detroit Free Press.

Degrading or Elevating.

There is so much that is good, pleasing and elevating in the world it is surprising that you should so often look for the unsavory things.

Why give circulation to matters which are degrading to heart and mind?

Why be a fifth peddler when you might be a dispenser of good things?

Why look for faults in conditions and persons when there is always a good side to everything?

There is always recompense for doing a good turn.

To have a sense of self-satisfaction in knowing that you have helped toward a good cause is worth all the inconvenience from such action.

ANNIE LAURIE'S TIMELY ADVICE

By ANNIE LAURIE

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

We are two girls, one 23 and one 24, who teach school. We are tired of the routine of teaching.

We are popular with the other sex, and have been proposed to several times. We are in love with two fellows who want us to marry them.

They hold good positions. With plenty to support us.

Most of the marriages we have seen are unlucky as the couples are always quarreling.

We think it would be the best unhappy thing to be divorced and have a child. This would also be hard on a child we think as we have high ideals, for ourselves and for our children, if we should have any.

We are afraid to take the step, as we are afraid our marriages will end like some of those in the divorce courts.

FINAL SHOWING TONIGHT

BLACK MULHALL and PATSY RUTH MILLER in "TWIN BEDS"

The Theaters

"Welcome Danger" Is Lloyd Talkie

After an absence of nearly a year and a half, Harold Lloyd is returning to the screen, making the occasion an auspicious one by presenting his first all-talking picture, "Welcome Danger," at the American theater next week.

The comedian spent many months mastering the new screen technique, and in "Welcome Danger" is said to have developed what will prove the fastest production shown since the advent of talking pictures. He has not deviated from the old method of producing his comedies, maintaining all the speed and action of his past successes, but adding sound and dialogue as good measure entertainment.

Many of the scenes of "Welcome Danger" are laid in San Francisco's underground Chinatown, and combine action, romance and mystery with a whirlwind series of laugh episodes. Lloyd is one of the last of the premiere actors of the silent screen to yield to talking pictures, holding out against the new art until he was thoroughly convinced of its merit. Once sold on dialogue and sound, however, he plunged into the work of using it to the fullest degree, in the building up of his comedy, and the result is "Welcome Danger," which is hailed as one of the greatest triumphs of his long picture career.

A new leading lady is presented by Lloyd, Barbara Kent, who is a sure fire screen partner for the bespectacled comedian. She has an excellent voice and her performance in "Welcome Danger" is said to stamp her for picture progress.

"Street Girl" Hit Comes to Ceramic

One of New York's most colorful sections, known as "Little Hungary," supplies the local for "Street Girl," Betty Compson's first all-talking and singing Radio Picture, which comes to the Ceramic theater next week.

Miss Compson is soon as an impoverished Hungarian violinist "adopted" by four boys, who are members of a band. Through the maneuvers of the girl, the little orchestra is given a trial in a Hungarian cafe, to which comes a European prince on a sight-seeing tour of New York's night clubs.

The attention paid by this prince to "Freddie" leads to their gaining a reputation which wins for them their own night club. It also complicates the love story in which John Harron plays opposite the lovely blonde actress.

Ivan Lebedeff, young Russian nobleman who came to Hollywood following the revolution, is cast as the prince. Jack Oakie, Ned Sparks and Joseph Cawthorn, for years a favorite on the New York musical comedy stage, carry the generous portions of comedy in the picture, while Guy Buccola and Eddie Kane appear in supporting roles.

Football, Campus Love State Story

The football season is here! Real college football will be on tap at the State theater next week, where "The Forward Pass," the first National and Vitaphone story of college life, will be seen and heard.

"The Forward Pass," the first National story of campus love and football, and is an all-dialogue picture with much singing and dancing. Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., and Loretta Young are co-featured in the story, and the big all-youth cast includes "Peck" Byrd, "Big Boy" Williams, Dorothy Gulliver, Phyllis Crane, Lane Chandler, Bert Rome, and the entire University of Southern California football team.

The football games in the picture have all the real sound effects, the thud of flying feet on the turf and the cheering of the great crowds, and are said to be thrilling in the extreme.

A number of new songs are introduced in the picture, one of which, "Up and At 'Em," is a stirring song hit.

The featured players, Miss Young and Mr. Fairbanks, are the youngest team on the screen, and are ideally fitted for a college story.

Rev. W. R. McKinney In Pulpit Sunday

Subject of the forenoon sermon will be "Christ and His Church." At 7:30 o'clock he will preach on "Isaiah's Vision of Christ." Sunday school will meet at 9:30 o'clock.

EAST END REVIVAL ENDS SUNDAY NIGHT

Rev. L. L. Hinton at Second Christian Church.

Rev. L. L. Hinton of Irvine, Ky., will conclude a two weeks' revival with three services tomorrow in the Second Christian church. His sermon topics will be: 11 a. m., "Is Conscience a Safe Guide?"; 3 p. m., "What Must I Do to be Saved?"; and 7:30 p. m., "A Man is More Valuable Than a Sheep." He will preach tonight on "The Gospel of Christ."

Choir and quartet music will feature each service. Out-of-town delegations, including one from Phillips, O., headed by the Rev. J. T. Ridgely, former pastor here, will attend the Sunday meetings.

Last night's sermon was based on a "Message From God." The Rev. Mr. Hinton spoke of the indifference of the people to the flood warnings of Noah.

"After the ark was finished and representatives of every species of animals were safely in it, God withheld the flood for seven days, allowing the people a chance to repent, but they hardened their hearts," he said. "Then the flood came and as the waters rolled higher and higher, the people came to the ark and pleaded to be taken in but God had closed the door."

"Thousands of people are acting in a similar manner. Warnings of a deluge of fire, which will sweep the world, have been given but they are unheeded. Only the few who obey His commands will be saved. When the rain of fire begins the gates of heaven will be closed to all the wicked and indifferent."

CONSIDER THE PRICE COMPARE THE VALUE

TODAY'S fine Oldsmobile can be purchased for as little as $875 for the two-door Sedan. Think what a comparatively small difference there is between the cost of this fine car and that of lower-priced automobiles.

Then consider what this small difference means in terms of appearance, comfort, performance, and all of the less outstanding but nevertheless important features that contribute to luxurious and carefree travel.

Compare Oldsmobile's appearance with that of other smart motor cars. You will find unusual beauty in the sweeping lines and graceful contours of its Fisher Body . . . excellent expression of taste in its luxurious upholstery and charming appointments.

Then compare Oldsmobile's riding comfort with that provided by other cars. You will thoroughly enjoy the riding ease assured by its deep-cushioned seats; flexible springs; and four Lovejoy hydraulic shock absorbers.

Compare, too, Oldsmobile's performance with that of other cars you have driven. You will find an abundance of power in Oldsmobile's big, high-compression engine . . . power to take you quickly and easily through crowded traffic or to convert long miles into minutes when you're out on the highway. This splendid full-range performance imparts a new exhilaration to driving, wherever you go.

Finally, when you have considered the results of these comparisons, check the many features that make up Oldsmobile's unusually complete equipment.

All these fine car qualities of appearance, performance, comfort, and durability represent exceptional value at Oldsmobile's price . . . value that you are not likely to find elsewhere in Oldsmobile's field. But make the comparisons yourself. Your own good sense of value will inevitably cause you to select Oldsmobile.

Forest Love

"A couple of big, bulking, lazy leavers, that's what we are! Especially me! Running up bills on you when we ought to be out working or something—"

"Tut, tut, nonsense." But she saw that he was pleased. And then, warningly, "Shh! Your mother will hear. She has one of her headaches. Louise got her all upset talking about some kind of a job with the Associated Charities or the Community Chest or something on that order."

"It's about time one of us did something. Piling up the bills—"

"Oh, that!" He pushed the little pile of them out of sight, smiled at her with false brightness. "That's nothing. I wouldn't feel I was a father if I didn't have a few bills. First think I know, though, some young fellow will have the job away from me, eh, baby?"

Her heart leaped. She laid her cheek against his. "Maybe, I've been thinking... papa, you won't mind?"

"Mind? Why, I want you to be happy—that's all—" He fumbled for the clean, folded handkerchief he always kept in his coat pocket, and wiped his glasses, scowling at them critically.

"Pops, you old sweetheart, I knew you'd understand!" Nancy's eyes were swimming. The torrent of words she had been holding back for weeks bubbled to her lips. "I've wanted to tell it for so long, and I haven't dared, and nobody would listen—mama or Louise—"

"What? Your mother wouldn't?"

"No, not really. You know how mama is. Just because it wasn't anyone she knew she wouldn't take it seriously and—"

Papa was beginning to get nervous. This wasn't what he had expected at all. He glanced apprehensively toward the kitchen door.

"Just because he's a ranger she won't believe that I'm really in love with him, and—"

"Shh! Wasn't that your mother coming?"

"No, I don't think so. Pops, you wouldn't mind a ranger for a son-in-law, would you? He's wonderful looking. Nearly six feet, and brown as an Indian. It's funny, too, with his light hair and blue eyes. And ride! Anything with four legs. He's so strong he could pick me up with one hand. He has, for that matter. But he's the most—"

He stopped her at last. "Now, now, you don't want to lose your head over some fellow you met on a summer vacation. I suppose you met him this summer?"

"Yes, but it's no summer romance. From the first minute we met—"

"Shh! What would your mother say?" He craned his neck over the frayed collar, looking anxiously toward the door. No sign of Kitty. He relaxed a little. Looked at his lovely daughter with love and pity. "What a babe she was, getting all stirred up over some good looking cowpuncher. The fellow probably put an arm around her some moonlight night. He knew. He was a young man, not so long ago."

Tenderly he smiled at the quivering girl. Gently he pinched her cheek. "So that's why you stayed away from your dad so long, eh? Having an affair with a cowpuncher, eh? Well... His manner changed. He became the bustling, garrulous Peter Hollenbeck they knew at the bank. "That's all right. But—that's not the kind of man to marry, Nancy. In three months the romance would be gone, and what would be left, eh?"

"Now you take any of the younger men in business. Take Frank Haworth frinstance. Solid, substantial citizen. Makes approximately three hundred per month." Papa dug a pencil out of his pocket, wrote neatly on the back of an old envelope, "$300."

"Not a great sum. But granting that you could save five hundred the first year, at four and a quarter per cent—"

Mama came in and set down. Picked up the book Nancy had been reading. "Anna Karenina... why do you read such outlandish things?" You fill your head with crazy ideas!"

Papa went on figuring. "Compounding the interest—"

Nancy continued to lean on the arm of his chair. The meaningless figures multiplied under her nose. She thought wildly of calling a taxi and starting back to the mountains tonight. But she was too tired and the family wouldn't believe it anyway. They'd think she was going to see May Belle. Or the Porter girls.

What was the matter with them? Why couldn't they see what was going on all around them? Papa juggling bills, paying this one two dollars on the first, that one ten on the fifteenth. Getting deeper and deeper into debt, shabbier and shabbier... Mama snooping, and poking and prying into things, and getting more off the track every minute...

giving her advice... And any minute Jack Beamer's wife might drag her into the divorce court, or she might go back to the hills and hide...

"Now what is it?" "Nothing." She was really thinking: Won't they be surprised if I have a child! (To Be Continued) (Copyright, 1929, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

KNOW CHRIST, IS MISSION CHIEF'S ADVICE

Capt. B. F. Mountford In St. Stephen's Pulpit.

SPEAKS TWICE

Four Services Will Be Held on Sunday.

Urging a faith that is intelligent, genuine and comprehensive of a personal knowledge of Jesus Christ, studied acquaintance with the Holy Scriptures and the early custom of the family altar, Captain B. F. Mountford, of the Church Army, New York City, impressed a large audience at St. Stephen's Episcopal church mission last night.

He spoke twice. A period of song, directed by Captain W. E. F. Bugg, also of New York City, being given between discourses. In his first part he spoke glowingly of the virtues and wealth of the Apostles' Creed, though on this occasion he confined himself to its initial section, "I believe in God the Father, maker of heaven and earth."

In the second, he stressed the need of return to activities which may feel the church has lost.

The scriptural lesson from Isaiah was read by Cadet W. H. Cochran, also of New York City.

The benediction was pronounced by the Rev. C. K. Caulk, the rector.

Army Booklets Distributed. Church Army booklets containing hymns which are utilized in their meetings all over the country and in England, were distributed.

Announcement was made by Captain Rugg that the Mission will be continued on Sunday and all of next week. On Sunday afternoon, at 3 o'clock, a meeting will be held at the church when personal religion will be discussed.

In the morning at 10 o'clock, period of intercession was held at which Captain W. E. F. Bugg made an address. A service for young people was held in the late afternoon with an earlier one at 2:30 o'clock to a personal religion group.

"It is a shame on the part of the church," said Captain Mountford, "that a great many who are members of it do not know their Bible. You know where to find the editorials, sporting columns, market reports, fiction section and feminine departments in your daily papers but how many can tell where in the gospels is found the narrative of the Prodigal Son? I was told a few days ago in our training school in Providence, R. I., that it took a class there 10 minutes to find the Book of Luke in the Bible.

Jerusalem Tubers Canned For Soup

SANTA ROSA, Calif.—The Jerusalem artichoke, which despite its name, is strictly a native product, today entered the ranks of California agriculture and industry.

Indians first called the Jerusalem artichoke to the attention of Champlain in 1603. It never has been grown commercially in the United States. The present crop is the first in the history of the country.

pressed The Apostles' Creed is a calm affirmation of evangelical truths. It is in two parts, the first stressing the triune God, the Father, the Son and the Holy Ghost, and the second the Christian church. We need to know what we believe that we may confirm our beliefs and faith and reassure our hearts thereby. Nothing does this as much as the Apostles' creed.

He told of having been an artilleryman during the World War and that his younger brother was a casualty while in the infantry. "I spent hours in solitude with my God on a hilltop after I received notification of his passing and was exceedingly rebellious at his being taken away in the flower of his youth and while possessing the beauty of character which was his," he confided. "But before I left the lofty eminence I had by communion with the Almighty realized that with His power He was after all the Father with a heart of love. Though still somewhat perplexed I came out of the occurrence a better man. We need to have our faith strengthened to the plane of knowing basically that God is the Father and the creator of all things."

Steel Freighter Depere Beached After Striking Rock Near Cape Decision, Alaska

Radio Reports no Lives Lost in Shipwreck.

SEATTLE, Wash., Nov. 16.—(INS)—Salvage tugs were hurrying to the assistance of the steel freighter Depere today after the vessel struck a rock last night and was beached in sinking condition at Port Maitland, near Cape Decision, Alaska.

There was no loss of life, according to the report received by the harbor radio department, the only source of information concerning the shipwreck.

A bulletin received by the department stated that the Depere was sending out SOS signals after ramming the rock in the dark. Shortly afterward she was reported foundering toward shore and reached the beach without mishap to any of the members of her crew.

The Depere, a vessel of 3475 tons, was commanded by Capt. John Newland of Seattle and belonged to the Alaska Steamship company.

Early yesterday a terrific storm was reported in the region where the Depere floundered. At that time fears were expressed for the safety of fishing boats and other craft. Reports from Alaska coast points described the gale as the most destructive in many years.

KILLS HIMSELF

Robert M. Searle, president of the Rochester Gas & Electric Corporation, killed himself at his Rochester (N. Y.) home. Stock market losses, said to aggregate a million dollars, were blamed for his death.

Both of her legs were badly scalded and though authorities are of the firm belief that her death was an accident, they are at a loss to explain it.

It was surmised that the heater, which had been placed on a stand near the bath tub, had fallen into the water. The water was charged heavily with electricity. That too may have caused the water to reach the boiling degree.

WIDOW DIES IN BATHTUB

Body Found in Boiling Water in Bucyrus Home.

BUCYRUS, O., Nov. 16.—(INS)—Peculiar circumstances surrounded the death of Mrs. August Broemel, 68-year-old widow, whose body was found in a bathtub full of boiling water at her home here last night. It was learned from police today.

In the water was an electric heater.

Both of her legs were badly scalded and though authorities are of the firm belief that her death was an accident, they are at a loss to explain it.

Boles' Eleven Picked to Edge Out New Concord Combine; Nine Buckeye Teams Finish Season.

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 16. — Five Ohio colleges have already sung their moleskin swan songs and tonight nine more gridiron choirs shall have joined the ever-swelling chorus.

Ashland with its Ray Novotny combination, and Wilmington finished in a blaze of glory yesterday. Novotny and his teammates ran through Adrian of Michigan for a 55 to 7 triumph. The sparkling halfback was at his best last night and he galloped his way to six touchdowns. He is the leading individual scorer in Ohio with 107 points which is 29 more than has his closest rival, Wilmington drew a 13 to 0 win from Hanover, of Indiana. The Hoosiers had a fair forward wall, but their scoring punch was pitifully weak.

One of those things known as a moral victory goes to Capital which held Defiance to a scoreless tie yesterday. Capital ended its season with two ties and the remainder defeats.

Rio Grande and Cedarville have already completed their pigskin antics, which, with Ashland, Wilmington and Capital, make five colleges which have nothing but memories today and next year's season to look forward to as another milestone in their gridiron careers.

Five Ohio Teams Finish. Heidelberg, Wooster, Oberlin, Otterbein and Ohio Northern — will call it quits today.

Wooster, which holds an imposing record even though somewhat soiled by one defeat, will throw its last ounce of energy against a strong Muskingum team which has a perfect record in the Ohio conference. And a little private war may be waged during the classic. Runyan, of Wooster, and McEwen, of Muskingum, both fullbacks of sneaking quality and both aspirants to the all-Ohio berth, will face each other. Grrrr!

Oberlin will engage Western Reserve in the former's own backyard. Both elevens are artists in upsetting the dopesters' buckets, so it would not be safe to predict the outcome.

The student princes of Heidelberg should finish gloriously against Ohio Northern. The result of the Hiram-Otterbein game at Westerville is a toss-up, though, because of past performances, the scribe is tended to give Hiram the edge.

Other teams which end their 1929 schedules today are Kent, Bluffton, Bowling Green and Findlay. There is no significant importance attached to any of those games.

Another Victim for Ohio U. Ohio university, whose Bobcats represent the strongest team in the state, excluding none, goes to Marietta to renew its rivalry with the college there. It will be a one-sided contest, probably, with the Bobcats on the favorable side.

Ohio Wesleyan will start its second-stringers against Cincinnati at Delaware. The battling Bobcats are pointing themselves for their game with Army at West Point next Saturday. They should have no trouble in winning today's tilt.

Two other moleskin arguments, the St. Xavier-Oglethorpe contest and the Dayton-Quantico Marine's classic, should not be deprived of a portion of the limelight.

The complete schedule, with an attempt to pick the favorites, follows:

Bluffton vs. Findlay at Bluffton. (Friday).

Bowling Green vs. Detroit C. C. at Bowling Green. (Bowling Green). Case vs. Akron at Cleveland. (Akron).

Dayton vs. Quantico Marines at Dayton. (Dayton).

Kent vs. Baldwin Wallace at Kent. (Baldwin Wallace).

Marietta vs. Ohio University at Marietta. (Ohio University).

Miami vs. Denison at Oxford. (Miami).

Michigan State Central Teachers. (Toledo).

Muskingum vs. Wooster at New Concord. (Wooster).

Oberlin vs. Western Reserve at Oberlin.

Ohio Northern vs. Heidelberg at Ada. (Heidelberg).

Ohio State vs. Kenyon at Columbus. (Ohio State).

Ohio Wesleyan vs. Cincinnati at Delaware. (Ohio Wesleyan).

Otterbein vs. Hiram at Westerville. (Hiram).

St. Xavier vs. Oglethorpe at Cincinnati. (Oglethorpe).

Washington and Jefferson vs. Wittenberg at Washington, Pa. (W and J).

Michigan State vs. John Carroll at East Lansing. (John Carroll).

Wilberforce vs. Kentucky State at Xenia. (Kentucky State).

So, even with Booth, Yale faced no sorority party this afternoon. Without him, it faces the traditional fight to the finish, without any assurance as to whose it will be. Maybe Yale will be the Yale of those sensational last-half ties of the last month. Maybe it will be merely the football team lost to Georgia and was tied by Maryland. Either way, I doubt if posterity will be greatly served.

As an event, a spectacle, its value is heightened like that of any authenticated antique. It is a game, the outcome of which won't even affect sectional issues; yet history can't be complete without it.

Belmont Hangs Up 11th Straight Win

Mason's Welterweight Star, Who Fights Thursday in Wellsville, Triumphs Over Gene Reed.

Jimmy Belmont, brilliant Pittsburgh welterweight, who is scheduled to box for Matchmaker Ray Fouts at the Valley A. C., Wellsville, next Thursday night, last night hung up his eleventh consecutive victory sign, joining the stable of James "Red" Mason, Smoky City pilot.

Belmont, slated to tangle with Roger Brooks, Cleveland star, in his Wellsville debut, copped a three-way decision over Gene Reed in 10 rounds at Moose temple but came away with an injured right paw.

It was the eleventh straight victory for Belmont. Last night an advantage of some five pounds in weight did not handicap Jimmy a bit but helped him in the clinches.

When he eluded to box, Jimmy made Reed look foolish but when he took to slugging he found a willing exponent facing him as Gene refused to do much backing up and as a result several collisions occurred that rocked both fighters at different times.

Reed's right hand roundhouse curve found a spot on Belmont's face in the fifth and sixth rounds and forced the Braddock lad to break ground. But Belmont once stung, resorted to his left jab and this helped keep Gene at a distance.

Belmont captured at least six rounds, and handed Gene a badly cut mouth. The fans got a kick out of seeing Gene spit gore all over Jimmy's shoulders, on a few occasions. That Reed was a sucker for Belmont's rapid left was painfully evident, the Fayette City lad having no defense against this blow. Belmont's left hook also found a connecting point on Gene's face when Jimmy cut it loose.

In the last two rounds Gene tried to spurt, but there was Belmont and that tantalizing left to stop him in his endeavor to flop over a punch that might by the way of something new topple Jimmy. These flurries on the part of Reed only brought Belmont's two hands into play and there was little comment made on the decision of the officials upon conclusion of the bout.

Belmont injured his right hand in the seventh round, the punching fin being badly swollen after the bout, but he showed little evidence of the injury during the last three rounds.

Purdue Fighting For Title

120,000 to See Notre Dame, Trojans in Chicago.

CHICAGO, Nov. 16. — Confident and ready, Notre Dame and Southern California, the giants of the 1929 football world, today awaited their intersectional clash before 120,000 spectators.

And not many miles away an eager Purdue eleven was waiting to prove its claim to the Western conference championship by bowling a blood-thirsty Iowa horde out of the road.

It's not only a matter of central states against far western in the Notre Dame-Trojan set, but a contest of types of football as well. This afternoon's gridiron classic matches the terrific driving power of the westerners against the clever and speedy style of play taught by Knute Rockne.

Roughly speaking, it is a match between high explosives and several varieties of lightning.

Minnesota, Ohio State, Wisconsin and Illinois are ready to say that if Purdue turns back the vengeful Iowa crew this afternoon the Boilermakers are entitled to the crown they have been seeking for three long decades.

A grim determination has marked Purdue's preparation for this all important struggle, and if they are tripped up as Minnesota was last week, it will not be because of neglect or carelessness. Two of the toughest lines in the middle west are going to decide the matter, and Purdue's wonder backfield is expected to turn the trick.

At Minneapolis a rejuvenated Michigan team is about to trade violence with Minnesota before 60,000 persons. Illinois and Chicago are attempting to settle an annual difference at Champaign, and Northwestern and Indiana are entertaining at Evanston, Ill.

Junior Home Captain Injured. Tiffin, O., Nov. 16.—When Coach John Starett's Junior Home football eleven meets Oberlin High on the local field Saturday afternoon, it will be without the services of Capt. Johnson and Bechtel, valuable fullback and tackle.

Bechtel has a bad shoulder and Johnson is still bothered with a bad knee. Both saw but five minutes' action in the game against Findlay, Monday.

Irish-U. S. C. Tilt to Draw 120,000

CHICAGO, Nov. 16. — The near-record football throng of 120,000 spectators were gathered at Soldier Field here today for the intersectional gridiron classic of the year between the University of Southern California and Notre Dame.

Both teams are practically at top strength on the field. Edelson may be missing from the Southern California lineup.

The power of the west coast aggression is expected to force Coach Knute Rockne's hand to the point of giving all the Irish possesses offensive.

Former High Stars Boost Strength of Local Eleven.

NEARING the close of one of the most successful seasons ever enjoyed by any East Liverpool grid squad, the East Liverpool Pros clash tomorrow afternoon at Sherwood with the Tarentum (Pa.) Firemen, with Leo Webber, former Tomer Laughlin Industrial Baseball league star, at the helm of the visiting combine.

The kick-off is scheduled for 3 o'clock and, with the visiting Firemen scheduled to reach here at noon or a little after, the management of the Potters expects no delay.

Dave Anderson and Frankie Kirkham, former high school football stars, will appear in the uniform of the Pros in Sunday's battle, Anderson at his old end position and Kirkham in the backfield.

And Jack Johnson, husky youngster who was with the high school eleven the forepart of the present season, may be seen in action at one of the halfback positions.

One game, or, possibly, a series of games may be played with the Midland professionals in the near future, depending upon the outcome of negotiations with the Steel City combine which also can boast of a successful campaign to date.

Coach Chap Finley of the Pros today instructed his Pros to don uniforms at home and report at the B. & B. Dresden avenue, at 2 p. m. Sunday. The Tarentum squad will make its headquarters in the Veterans of Foreign Wars' home in Lincoln avenue.

dist church revival last night.

"Prayer" was the topic.

Sermon topics tomorrow will be: Morning, "Faith;" evening, "Future Punishment."

Eight persons went forward for supplication at the altar last night. One conversion resulted.

"God is ever willing to answer prayer but people in these days hardly expect replies to their petitions and but perfunctorily make them as a matter of form in many instances. There is little evidence that many prayers are from the heart. If there is faith enough in God's willingness and ability to answer prayer then there will be expectation of quick answering."

He urged in conclusion more praying by churchmen.

Something Was Done.
Prices Up, Loans Down.
We Make Good Rugs.
Women's Colleges Starved.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE.

(Copyright, 1929, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

BROKERS' loans, borrowed for stock investment and speculation, dropped seven hundred million dollars in a week a very "bull" point.

General Motors declared an extra dividend of thirty cents that will give stockholders in a few days $12,900,000 more than they would have had ordinarily. That was cheerful news.

THE powers of government and finance did something about the shrinkage in stock values and public confidence Thursday. A lower income tax was announced. And later came a lowering of the rediscount rate to four and one-half per cent. All that will help.

THE important thing is for the public to come out of its hysteria and realize that the foolishness of a few gamblers does not justify throwing away securities for less than their value.

Don't gamble, and don't be panic-stricken.

ALL kinds of plus signs appeared in the stock list. Up 3, up 10 1/4, up 13 1/2, up 17. It was a regular up, up, day, a sort of "excellent" poem in Wall Street.

Those that had mourned, rejoiced. And some of the bears that had rejoiced, mourned.

BY way of comfort, a Wall Street writer tells you: "The panic of 1837 came to an end."

The panic of 1857 came to an end. The panic of 1873 came to an end. The panic of 1893 came to an end.

The panic of 1907 came to an end. And the panic of 1929 will come to an end.

CERTAINLY it may have ended now. It wasn't a panic based on bad conditions that usually cause panics. It was a toppling over of pyramided gambling that had to topple.

Panics come to an end, but unfortunately human foolishness does not come to an end.

THE governments of Turkey and Pasha, protest against "misrepresentations by American rug and carpet manufacturers marketing products under Oriental names."

No American merchant of consequence misrepresents goods.

Americans are manufacturing rugs and carpets, superb in color and wearing qualities, that will take the place of Oriental rugs in time. Ask James Simpson, of Chicago, for details.

ONCE the Romans drank only Greek wines, thinking their own inferior.

Later French aristocrats accepted only Italian wines, although their own were admirable.

This country's wealthy would drink only French claret and champagne, although we made good wines here until prohibition came along.

Before long Americans will realize that their own rugs and carpets are as good as any in the world.

CHARLES E. HUGHES made a good speech on Wednesday, demanding more generous endowment of women's education.

Seven leading women's colleges have not one-tenth the endowment of the seven leading men's colleges.

That is extremely foolish, for the mothers of the human race are at least ten times as important as the fathers.

What women learn they remember and tell to their children. What men learn they forget in business and don't tell anybody.

VENIZELLOS, prime minister and ablest man in Greece, knows what airplanes will mean when war comes.

He will establish a separate air ministry, and run it himself.

President Hoover, able engineer, ought to have a separate air ministry as one of three branches of a national defense system, and he has his own air minister. Nobody could do the work better. A sub-secretary could look after details.

JUST now, as you know, the Red Cross is making a drive for more members, and more money. The president urges all to join.

Some busy gentleman in Wall Street felt uneasy when a huge Red Cross flag was seen floating over the Stock Exchange. It recalled, painfully, battle, war, sudden death.

However, prices went up, so the flag was a good omen.

THE senate, refusing to adjourn on November 23, by a vote of 52 to 34, will go on working at the tariff.

European countries, afraid of higher duties, had rejoiced to hear of the adjournment and a more or less feeble move to boycott Uncle Sam was abandoned.

It may be taken up again.

MAN IN CAR

Mrs. Louise Horton Is Victim at Her- ington.

All this time Mrs. Horton is said to have had a gun pressed against Sheriff Dederick.

"I'm going to kill you," the woman is alleged to have said after ordering him to jump from the motor car.

FARMER AID WRITTEN INTO TARIFF BILL

Senate Votes to Retain Agricultural Benefits.

AGRARIANS GLAD Amendments Adopted Raising House Rates.

By WILLIAM S. NEAL.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—(INS.)—The highest tariff barriers ever erected by congress for the benefit of American farmers were written into the Hawley-Smoot tariff bill today with completion of the chief agricultural sections of the senate.

The senate not only retained the major increases proposed for agriculture by the house but adopted a score of amendments raising other house rates. In only a few instances were spokesmen for the great consuming centers successful in blocking boosts.

With the adoption of minor amendments today, the senate was still confronted with the related agricultural schedules of tobacco and sugar. Neither was embraced in the original "farm bloc" program to boost the agricultural rates to a parity with industry in conformity with the special session call of President Hoover.

Although "farm bloc" members proclaimed the result a sweeping victory for agriculture, there was some dissatisfaction even in the bloc's ranks over the boosts.

Senator Norbeck (R.) of South Dakota declared that some agricultural rates had been lifted out of reason and Senator Wheeler (D.) of Montana asserted "we have gone to the extreme in fixing rates."

At the same time Senator Glass (D.) of Virginia criticized the senate by declaring the great American consuming public "hasn't got a chance on earth here."

Slight Improvement Noted by Physicians In His Pulse and Temperature.

HOOVER GOES TO BEDSIDE

Cabinet Member Gets Natural Rest After Specialists Feared End Near.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—(INS.)—Blood poisoning has developed in the system of James W. Good, 63, secretary of war, and "only his own resistance, coupled with the treatment administered," will save his life, President Hoover was told this afternoon.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—(INS.)—James W. Good, secretary of war, was peacefully sleeping at Walter Reed hospital at 10:30 a. m. today when his physicians gathered outside the sickroom for a consultation. A slight improvement was noted in his pulse and temperature.

After a night that caused the specialists to fear the end was near and brought President Hoover to his bedside, the cabinet member went to sleep at 9 o'clock.

This was his second natural rest since 6 a. m., when he awakened from a slumber that started at 2. His natural sleeping is the best thing that can happen, his physicians reported to Mr. Hoover. They hope it will return to him some of the strength he lost during the night in his restlessness with pain. Opiates were finally administered to quiet him.

Dr. John M. T. Finney, Johns Hopkins hospital specialist, has returned to Baltimore. He said the physicians here have done everything possible. He was hurriedly summoned here last night for a consultation at the hospital.

FROMM JURY AT CLEVELAND IN DEADLOCK

Deliberations Resumed In Canton Bribery Case.

$400 "CUT" COUNT

Disagreement Reported About Dictograph Conversation.

CLEVELAND, Nov. 16.—(INS.)—Deadlocked after eight hours of deliberation, the jury trying the bribery case of Charles A. Fromm, Stark county commissioner, was ordered locked up last night to resume deliberations at 8:30 a. m. today.

Disagreement among the jurors was reported to have settled about the testimony of witnesses and the dictograph conversation between Fromm and agents of the Colson-Cleveland Company, from whom the commissioner was accused of having demanded a "cut" on a contract awarded for equipment for the Molly Stark sanitarium.

The jurors requested a copy of the verbal testimony of witnesses and the dictograph conversation last night, but Judge Irving Carpenter replied it was impossible to furnish either.

The state contended in its case that Fromm had threatened to hold up payment on a bill of the Colson company for sanitarium equipment unless he received $400 or at least $200. Fromm on the witness stand admitted he wanted the money and that he would have accepted it from the agents but that he didn't consider it a bribe and that it would not have influenced his actions as a member of the Stark county board of commissioners.

Defense attorneys asserted to day that in case of a conviction they will carry the case to higher courts.

WALL STREET GETS RESPITE

Feeling of Relief as Stock Exchange Closes.

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—(INS.)—There being no session of the New York Stock Exchange today, brokers and their over-worked employees enjoyed another welcome respite. They were at their offices, however, catching up on accumulated tasks.

Throughout Wall street there was a distinct feeling of relief and optimism—in sharp contrast to the situation a week and two weeks ago. The rally in prices yesterday and the day before has had the effect of bringing about a decided change of front. Pessimism has given way to optimism and the general belief is that the situation as regards the stock market will continue to show a steady gradual improvement.

President Hoover's action in calling for a "prosperity" conference of the nation's leading business men at Washington next week was also regarded as another important factor tending to create additional confidence in the future.

The leading bankers, who had been watching the trend of the stock market with concern, now feel that the situation is almost normal.

Road law violators numbered 183 persons who paid fines of $3,368, costs of $1,294.65, and were sentenced to jail terms aggregating four years, four months and 15 days.

Arrests for infraction of the prohibition law numbered 372. Fines imposed in prohibition cases were $29,225, costs amounted to $8,181.41, and confinement aggregated 76 years, three months and six days.

PROBLEM OF UNOCCUPIED SCHOOL WORRIES LISBON VILLAGE BOARD

LISBON, O., Nov. 16.—As a result of the consolidation of the Mt. Pleasant school zone with the Lisbon district, the Lisbon board of education has an unoccupied one-room building on its hands. The problem has been referred to Assistant Prosecuting Attorney George L. Lafferty.

The situation is unusual, in that the board of education does not plan the erection of any new building. Had this scheme been in mind, the Mt. Pleasant building and land could be sold at public auction and the money applied to the cost of a new school or placed in the sinking fund.

Should the state department of industrial relations condemn the building, it could be razed.

Unless the building is condemned, the property must be held for four years before it can be advertised for sale.

Mt. Pleasant children are now attending Lisbon schools.

FOREST LOVE

Thrilling Story of Romance of Modern Girl

By Hazel Livingston

What Has Gone Before. Nancy Hollenbeck, young, beautiful and romantic, becomes cynical when her mother warns her against marrying a poor man. She causes comment when she gives up Mat Tully and accepts the ardent attentions of Jack Beamer who plans to divorce his rich wife to marry Nancy. On a mountain trip with relatives, Nancy toys with the affections of a handsome ranger, Roger Decatur. In spite of her expressed desire to marry for riches only, she suddenly gives way to Roger's passionate love making and marries him. At first she is happy in his mountain cabin, but when he leaves on a long trip, she flees to her home. Without informing her family of her marriage, she re-enters the old social life. At a party, Jack Beamer monopolizes her. But Nancy repulses Beamer's affectionate embraces. At home Nancy's letters from Decatur arouse her mother's suspicions. Nancy almost tells her secret. But even Louise shows no interest when Nancy mentions the ranger.

Now Go On With The Story.

"Hollenbeck? Sign here, please!" Nancy sighed. She accepted the big striped box gingerly, as if it had been a bomb, likely to go off at any moment. The fourth in four days. This would have to stop. Things couldn't go on like this.

"More flowers?" papa looked up over his spectacles. Nancy giggled helplessly. "Is it a joke, or a bet or what?" "I think it's a mistake. He must have put in an order at a florist and forgot to stop it. I wish to goodness he'd kept that," she said, poking with fingers that were gentle in spite of her, at the waxy green paper that covered Jack Beamer's unwelcome gift. Pansies. Baby roses. Gardenias. They looked at her with innocent sweetness. In the movies girls throw away flowers from men they don't like. Nancy always ended by loving him, and cutting the stems to make them last.

"You ought to speak to him about it," papa said, squinting at them. "Your mother won't like it. . . that maidenhair smells nice. Kind of like the country. . . like the woods. . . Roger's woods. . . She laid a piece of it against her lips, breathing in its good green smell. . .

Maybe she could talk to papa! She looked at him with mounting excitement. Maybe he'd understand. Papa, who read the sport page from beginning to end every night and was always talking about crack shots and prize fighters, and men who spend eighteen hours in the saddle. Surely he'd appreciate Roger. . .

She came and curled up on the arm of his chair. "Well, Nancy girl?" "How pretty she was! It was worth it. . . worth all the drudgery and disappointment and failure to have a girl like that! With a smile, all tenderness and pride, he pushed back the papers he had been working over.

"They were bills. The plumber's bill for the new bathroom faucets that were put in last December lay on top, and underneath, one older than that. Dr. Deming's bill for Lou's tonsils; he took them out nearly two years ago.

"Well, Nancy girl, what do you want, a new hat?" "Nancy had the grace to blush. 'I don't want anything,' she said quickly. . . 'Papa, you shouldn't wear a collar that's all 'rayed like that! It's a disgrace. And that awful necktie!'

He grinned. "No one is going to look at an old fellow like me. Not while I have a couple of pretty girls they can look at instead."

SOVIET TRADE PLANS WORRY MOSCOW HEADS

German Press Attacks "Pro-American" Policy.

MEETINGS FAIL

Favorable Balance of Trade Russian Problem.

MOSCOW.—The unsatisfactory state of German-Soviet trade relations, which has given rise to German press attacks against the alleged "pro-American" trade policy of the Soviet government and its insistence on a favorable balance of trade, is causing considerable worry in Moscow. Mutual discussion of the problem and possible remedies have failed to dispel German pessimism.

M. G. Gurevich, director of the Foreign department of the Supreme Economic Council, and other trade officials have placed the blame on German industrialists.

At a recent meeting of the Western Chamber of Commerce, attended by German business and diplomatic representatives stationed in Moscow, M. Gurevich said that trade relations between the two countries were hampered first by the refusal, or at least reluctance, of German industrialists to reveal their manufacturing secrets so that Soviet engineers might copy them, and secondly, by the German misconception of the needs of Soviet industry, based upon the false idea that Russia is and will remain an agricultural country.

Insist On Rights.

"We have no desire to discriminate against Germany," M. Gurevich said, but we do insist on our right to industrialize our country, even though the attempt upsets the prognostications of capital economists. And having embarked on this policy of rapid industrialization, we naturally buy where we get the most for our money.

"I cannot conceal the fact that in the United States we have met with a greater response to our needs than in Germany or other European countries. American manufacturers are not so reluctant to show us the methods by which they achieved success. In fact Americans believe that a minute understanding of their manufacturing methods and skill is the best advertising medium for American goods."

A bulletin of the State bank in discussing the general import program of the Soviets makes it clear that all foreign countries cannot hope to boost their exports to Russia. If one country increases its trade, it will be at the expense of others.

"Practically every year," the bulletin said, "the import plant of various government trusts are drastically reduced since in their aggregate they exceed the export resources and foreign currency reserves of the country. It should be pointed out, however, that in actual figures the foreign currency reserves are growing."

Want Independence.

This desire to make the Soviet Union independent of foreign capitalist countries was touched upon also by M. Gurevich when he told German business men that more and more emphasis is being laid on the purchase of technical aid abroad than upon the purchase of goods.

In the fiscal year which began Oct. 1 he estimated that the Soviet government would spend 40,000,000 rubles (nominally $20,000,000) for engineering advice.

Sixty technical air contracts have been concluded with foreign engineering firms so far. Half of them are German. But German business men pointed out that technical air contracts don't help solve the problem of finding markets for the Reich's surplus industrial production and employment.

The only solution which might be satisfactory to both parties is a combination of technical advice and sale of goods as Ford and the General Electric company have done.

Sixty technical air contracts have been concluded with foreign engineering firms so far. Half of them are German. But German business men pointed out that technical air contracts don't help solve the problem of finding markets for the Reich's surplus industrial production and employment.

The only solution which might be satisfactory to both parties is a combination of technical advice and sale of goods as Ford and the General Electric company have done.

More than 1,000,000 tons of iron will be mined in Tunisia this year.

More than 1,000,000 straw hats were exported from the Philippines this year.

At a recent meeting of the Western Chamber of Commerce, attended by German business and diplomatic representatives stationed in Moscow, M. Gurevich said that trade relations between the two countries were hampered first by the refusal, or at least reluctance, of German industrialists to reveal their manufacturing secrets so that Soviet engineers might copy them, and secondly, by the German misconception of the needs of Soviet industry, based upon the false idea that Russia is and will remain an agricultural country.

Insist On Rights.

"We have no desire to discriminate against Germany," M. Gurevich said, but we do insist on our right to industrialize our country, even though the attempt upsets the prognostications of capital economists. And having embarked on this policy of rapid industrialization, we naturally buy where we get the most for our money.

"I cannot conceal the fact that in the United States we have met with a greater response to our needs than in Germany or other European countries. American manufacturers are not so reluctant to show us the methods by which they achieved success. In fact Americans believe that a minute understanding of their manufacturing methods and skill is the best advertising medium for American goods."

A bulletin of the State bank in discussing the general import program of the Soviets makes it clear that all foreign countries cannot hope to boost their exports to Russia. If one country increases its trade, it will be at the expense of others.

"Practically every year," the bulletin said, "the import plant of various government trusts are drastically reduced since in their aggregate they exceed the export resources and foreign currency reserves of the country. It should be pointed out, however, that in actual figures the foreign currency reserves are growing."

Want Independence.

This desire to make the Soviet Union independent of foreign capitalist countries was touched upon also by M. Gurevich when he told German business men that more and more emphasis is being laid on the purchase of technical aid abroad than upon the purchase of goods.

In the fiscal year which began Oct. 1 he estimated that the Soviet government would spend 40,000,000 rubles (nominally $20,000,000) for engineering advice.

Money For Santa Claus

Yuletide buying in the East Liverpool district should be stimulated within the next two weeks, for three banks will drop approximately $263,000 into the stocking of Santa Claus in the form of Christmas savings club checks.

While the exact figures have not been announced, these "greeting" checks, representing savings during the last 50 weeks, will be mailed to probably 5,000 persons, who, in turn, will spend no small of it in Christmas buying.

East Liverpool thus receives part of the $6,000,000 which will be distributed to 9,000,000 members of Christmas clubs by more than 8,000 banks and financial institutions. This record distribution is ten per cent in excess of last year's report and more than five times the amount accumulated in 1920.

At least 35 per cent of the money will be expended in Christmas purchases, while the remainder will be used for permanent savings and investments, year-end commitments, insurance premiums, mortgages and interest, taxes, education and travel and charity.

The plan, introduced 19 years ago, as a simple and practical method of systematically accumulating funds for Christmas needs, has proved a factor in stabilizing prosperity throughout the maintaining of buying power during the holiday season. East Liverpool's share of the fund should make Santa Claus happy.

Old Vienna Town

News of unrest comes regularly from Vienna, Austria's capital. Student revolts are frequent; a movement for the restoration of the Hapsburg line to their ancestral domains is heard of occasionally. Socialists and Fascists clash in the streets. Chancellor Schober is harassed by the reactionary Fascists who demand sweeping changes in the constitution of the country. Semi-military groups are fully armed and civil war is never an impossibility.

Vienna has always been a diplomatic hotbed. It is the storied city of international intrigue and wily statesmen. Still the city is one of the gayest capitals in the world. Her operas are always crowded and her beer gardens are filled with eager crowds who partake of schnapps and applaud the five-piece orchestras which really play excellent music. Beautiful woods and the government buildings of stone make her a city distinguished for beauty. The scenes of most of the old-fashioned light operas were laid in Vienna, with the poor peasant girl and her princely lover having the leading roles.

The old city has weathered many storms. The raging Turk has thundered at her eastern gates and revolution has belabored her with martial law, but the scars of former conflicts are not visible. The Hungarians, one of the noblest of the peoples of southeastern Europe, once were dispossessed of their property in Vienna, but they quickly made themselves new homes and the evidences of the hardships they suffered are no longer discernible, although the event is not a dozen years past.

Always the home of musicians, Vienna has developed a style of music which is distinctly original. The melodies of Franz Schubert and the Strausses of the past, and the music of Lehar and Walmans of our own times is always associated with the city. These little disturbances in Vienna are nothing new. They may have great consequences later, but Vienna will quickly be adapted to any radical changes. Under a monarch, or as a republic Vienna is inherently a rollicking capital, populated with people who are eager to live and laugh.

A Mighty Project

Several years ago, Stanley Baldwin, then prime minister of Great Britain, appointed three commissions to give concentrated study to one of the most ambitious engineering projects ever conceived—a tunnel under the English channel, connecting England with France. One commission was to devote its entire attention to the military aspects of the project, the second to study the political phases, and the third was to look into the economic possibilities of such a tunnel, were it ever to be completed.

The general nature of the findings of these groups seems to be known, although they have not, as yet, been officially filed. As far as the political and military aspects are concerned, no strong case can be worked out against the tunnel. The prime consideration is the possibility of attack on England from forces coming over from the continent, but it is obvious that such a move would be utterly disastrous to those who entrusted themselves to the cramped space within the tube.

The third commission's report, however, is known in advance to be unfavorable. It seems no prospect that the use of such a tunnel would be large enough to insure any adequate return on the huge investment required. They release the opinion that it would merely be another heavy burden on the British taxpayers.

Such an opinion was to be expected and in all probability it will be many years before excavation for any kind of tunnel under the English channel is authorized. The world, awaiting the development of such a project, may become impatient, but it is England that has the most at stake. In any case, an international tunnel is a case where enthusiasm should not be allowed to run ahead of solid business.

HASKIN LETTER DAILY

By Frederic J. Haskin

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 16.—Increasing attention is being given by American industrialists and exporters to the growth of cartels in Europe since the war. The effects which these highly organized international agreements on prices and quotas have on American foreign trade are being studied with no little curiosity. A cartel is an organization not only of competing industries within a nation but crossing international boundaries. Output is limited and prices are fixed. Then, too, territory is allocated, units of the industries agreeing to confine their sales efforts to particular regions.

Probably the most compact cartel in Europe is the Franco-German cartel which controls the potash deposits of Alsace-Lorraine. Prior to 1924 when the present cartel was organized the Germans on the one hand and the French on the other engaged in cutthroat competition. The companies of the two countries now are in an agreement whereunder they keep out of each others markets and as these particular deposits supply 95 per cent of the world's potash, it can be seen that they exercise a measure of dictation which is practically absolute.

The cartel which seems to offer American industry the greatest threat, however, is the International Steel Entente.

Nine European countries belong to it and they represent a full third of the world's steel output. It is scarcely likely that our own growing export trade in iron and steel could be checked. Indeed, the International Steel Entente already has made inroads into the South American market. The steel industries of the nine countries have agreed to regulation of production, the fixing of prices, and the division of territory.

There is no legal bar to American companies joining such cartels for purposes of export. The Sherman law forbids such combinations in our domestic trade but not in connection with selling abroad. This might work to the advantage of a relatively weak company or one wholly inexperienced in the foreign trade. But the disadvantage would be in the fact that upon entering the arrangement the American company would be tied up in an agreement limiting its output. In fact American companies have joined five European cartels, those controlling copper, electric light bulbs, aluminum, zinc, and borax.

One of the largest cartels is that producing rayon. Great Britain, Germany, and Italy compose it and through financial relationship subsidiary companies are producing a large part of the rayon being made in this country.

European cartels now cover, in addition to those mentioned, steel rails, screws, enamel ware, iron tubes, bottle glass, important chemicals, linoleum, carbide of calcium, glue, and wire.

Conditions are not precisely the same in the United States as they are in Europe. Europe's immediate post-war difficulty was overproduction in many lines. The populations had been so impoverished by the war that they had a greatly impaired purchasing power. And while doubtless the people would have been glad to have more things they were unable to buy them. The great plants which had been built up during the war had to turn to peacetime production and there arose a disparity between the productive capacity and the effective demand.

Moreover, world markets had been disrupted during the war, colonies lost in some cases, and all manner of dislocations to trade occurred. In such a situation the companies merged to save themselves and coming thus under a centralized management it was possible to control production and maintain a better balance between output and the exploitable market.

Then, too, the advantage of having international price and distribution agreements is far more marked in Europe than in the United States. Here we are sufficiently removed by the ocean from the sort of immediate competition which European companies have that no such pressure is felt.

Q. Was Rex, King of Wild Horses, ever ridden with a saddle on his back? A. F.

A. The R. K. O. Studios says that so far as they know, Rex, King of Wild Horses, never has been ridden, either with a saddle or without.

Q. When did Walter Camp pick his first All American Football Team? R. U.

A. He picked his first All American Football Team in 1889. That eleven included only Harvard, Yale and Princeton players. Players of these universities monopolized places on the All American Team until 1895 when Wychoff of Cornell was picked as quarterback. In 1896 the first middle weight player found a place on Mr. Camp's eleven. He was Hirschberger, a Chicago fullback.

Q. How many shades are used in making mosaics? P. A.

A. The modern mosaicists of Venice have 40,000 varying shades to use in the creation of mosaics.

Q. How many buildings has Yale? R. C.

A. It has 142 buildings, besides twenty dormitories, and a library which contains 1,700,000 volumes.

Q. Where are the 39th and 58th United States Infantry regiments stationed at present? R. J. M.

A. The 39th Infantry is inactive and there is no 58th Infantry in the service at the present time.

Q. How much ground is occupied by Croydon and Le Bourget aerodromes? M. D.

A. Each contains about 400 acres.

Q. In Longfellow's day, what was the fashionable dinner hour in Boston? R. A. D.

A. It was served about two o'clock.

Q. Is the dark part of Mars supposed to be water? A. M. J.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre.

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—Chinatown is only a shell of former opulence, but remains the most carefully policed section in New York. Time after time when Chinatown's long fires seemed extinguished, they were found to be only smouldering.

Hatchet men and their allies with sawed off shot guns would suddenly swarm from mysterious passages, wave and the crooked gray streets would run red. Then the carnage would dry up and disappear like a rain drop on a parched desert.

Even the most devout "stool pigeons" have never been able to tip off an impending battle. One minute Chinatown seemed to nod in a dreamy escape from reality and the next it would ring with creaking shouts of victors mingled with the groans of vanquished.

Before the reserves arrived from the Elizabeth street station around the corner, Chinatown is revealing its sullen indifference and sleepy blink. Nine patrolmen and six plain clothes men are roaming the streets of the quarter every hour of day and night.

In addition there are sixteen special detectives, changed frequently, and a squad of narcotics clench detailed there at all times. The Chinese Merchants association, which actually governs the district, also has a quota of carefully selected informers.

Nearly all the gambling houses, opium dens and brothels which were a part of old Chinatown have moved to New Jersey. On Sunday former residents return to promenade and discuss news of their native land. What is left of Chinatown is supported by yap wagon tourists.

There are professional cicerones who give slang song lectures in the grounds passages where "prop" drug addicts lie in banks feigning poppy addiction. But only when a tong war blazes, is there excitement in Mott, Doyers or Pell street any more.

Tong men are not considered outlaws by the Chinese. A tong is a commercial organization. Business enterprises are dominated by them and a Chinaman must be identified with a tong or he cannot get a job.

From an anonymous correspondent: "We hear much about in comes of syndicate writers. You, for instance, are reported receiving several amounts. Come on, now, what's the low down?"

What's the use? We have all lied so much nobody will believe us anyway.

Other Editors Say

The Case of Mr. Koga.

The board of review of the department of labor has determined that Japanese newspaper correspondents may enter this country and remain here indefinitely. The decision was reached in the case of Kimaki Koga, who declined to be admitted as a temporary visitor who would have to have his visa extended from time to time. He appealed from the decision of the immigration authorities in Los Angeles, saying he was entitled to admittance as a business man under the terms of the commercial treaty and this contention has now been sustained.

The decision is a fortunate one. We exclude oriental labor and are justified in doing so by social as well as economic considerations, but the law was never intended to act as a bar to the healthy intellectual contact provided by the residence here of correspondents from oriental lands. Had any one imagined when the exclusion law was enacted that it could be interpreted as interfering with the activities of such men as Koga, it is certain that the law or the treaty would have made a special exception in their behalf.

Fortunately, our relations with Japan have not been adversely affected by this incident. The last thing the people of the United States wish to do is to give offense to the people of Japan. Without in any way weakening our position on the desirability of wholesome Japanese immigration, we might well examine the law with a view to removing from it any needless assaults upon Japanese national pride. As a matter of fact, we could well afford to admit Japanese on a quota basis like that applied to citizens of other lands. The number of Japanese admitted would be a few hundred each year and their admittance would remove a possible source of irritation. —Chicago Tribune.

Looting The Russian Peasant. If it is true, as a dispatch from Russia says, that Moscow has "declared war upon the Russian peasant," and is about to confiscate half his produce and buy the remainder at its own price, the world may see some interesting developments in the land of the Slavs within the next few months. The Russian farmer peasant never has been particularly enamored of the bolshevik regime. He hasn't cared for its communist program, and he hasn't embraced its anti-religious ideas with any enthusiasm. At times he has hoarded his grain and has refused to show any sympathy when hungry Red leeches in the towns have clamored for a share. On the whole the strain between the communistic organization and the peasant has been rather considerable and has been a great trouble to the Moscow gang.

Apparently that crowd has now decided to quit pleading and employing diplomatic and half-way measures and is turning to desperate policies. The program indicated in the Riza dispatch is nothing more or less than a wholesale looting scheme, designed to feed the cities at the expense of the country. The only excuse for it, is the danger that unless something of the sort is done the towns will starve this winter. How much resistance the peasants may put up, and how successful a fight they can make will probably depend upon their capacity for organization, and upon the extent to which Moscow may be able to turn its organized military force against them to compel obedience. Presumably Moscow thinks it is in a position to exercise duress. Certainly it has worked hard to build up an army of oppression. —Detroit Free Press.

The Theaters

"Welcome Danger" Is Lloyd Talkie

After an absence of nearly a year and a half, Harold Lloyd is returning to the screen, making the occasion an auspicious one by presenting his first all-talking picture, "Welcome Danger," at the American theater next week.

The comedian spent many months mastering the new screen technique, and in "Welcome Danger" is said to have developed what will prove the fastest production shown since the advent of talking pictures. He has not deviated from the old method of producing his comedies, maintaining all the speed and action of his past successes, but adding sound and dialogue as good measure entertainment.

Many of the scenes of "Welcome Danger" are laid in San Francisco's underground Chinatown, and combine action, romance and mystery with a whirlwind series of laugh episodes.

Lloyd is one of the last of the premiere actors of the silent screen to yield to talking pictures, holding out against the new art until he was thoroughly convinced of its merit. Once sold on dialogue and sound, however, he plunged into the work of using it to the fullest degree, and the result is that "Welcome Danger" is hailed as one of the greatest triumphs of his long picture career.

A new leading lady is presented by Lloyd, Barbara Kent, who is a sure fire screen partner for the bespectacled comedian. She has an excellent voice and her performance in "Welcome Danger" is said to stamp her for picture progress.

"Street Girl" Hit Comes to Ceramic

One of New York's most colorful sections, known as "Little Hungary," supplies the local for "Street Girl." Betty Compson's first all-talking and singing Radio Picture, which comes to the Ceramic theater next week.

Miss Compson is seen as an impoverished Hungarian violinist "adopted" by four boys, who are members of a band. Through the maneuvers of the girl, the little orchestra is given a trial in a Hungarian cafe, to which comes a European prince on a sight-seeing tour of New York's night clubs.

The attention paid by this prince to "Freddie" leads to their gaining a reputation which wins for them their own night club. It also complicates the love story in which John Harron plays opposite the lovely blonde actress.

Ivan Lebedeff, young Russian nobleman who came to Hollywood following the revolution, is cast as the prince. Jack Oakie, Ned Sparks and Joseph Cawthorn, for years a favorite on the New York musical comedy stage, carry the generous portions of comedy in the picture, while Guy Buccola and Eddie Kane appear in supporting roles.

Football, Campus Love State Story

The football season is here! Real college football will be on tap at the State theater next week, where "The Forward Pass," the first National and Vitaphone story of college life, will be seen and heard.

"The Forward Pass," the first National story of campus love and football, and is an all-dialogue picture with much singing and dancing. Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., and Loretta Young are co-featured in the story, and the big all-youth cast includes "Peanuts" Byron, "Big Boy" Williams, Dorothy Gulliver, Phyllis Crane, Lane Chandler, Bert Rome, and the entire University of Southern California football team.

The football games in the picture have all the real sound effects, the thud of flying feet on the turf, and the cheering of the great crowds, and are said to be thrilling in the extreme.

A number of new songs are introduced in the picture, one of which, "Up and At 'Em," is a stirring song hit.

The featured players, Miss Young and Mr. Fairbanks, are the youngest team on the screen, and are ideally fitted for a college story.

Relief From Dreaded Coughing.

Hard coughs that strain and weaken, resulting from colds and recurrent bronchial attacks, are very quickly eased and relieved by reliable Foley's Honey and Tar Compound, that dislodges irritating mucus without effort, and clears up the distressing coughs. Mrs. F. A. Gibson, Racine, Wis., says: "Coughs never last long in our family—Foley's Honey and Tar puts a quick end to coughing, and heals the sore spots. Our druggist recommended it."—Adv.

EAST END

REVIVAL ENDS SUNDAY NIGHT

Rev. L. L. Hinton at Second Christian Church.

Rev. L. L. Hinton of Irvine, Ky., will conclude a two weeks' revival with three services tomorrow in the Second Christian church. His sermon topics will be: 11 a. m., "Is Conscience a Safe Guide?" 3 p. m., "What Must I Do to be Saved?" and 7:30 p. m., "A Man is More Valuable Than a Sheep." He will preach tonight on "The Gospel of Christ."

Choir and quartet music will feature each service. Out-of-town delegations, including one from Phillips, O., headed by the Rev. J. T. Ridgely, former pastor here, will attend the Sunday meetings.

Last night's sermon was based on a "Message From God." The Rev. Mr. Hinton spoke of the difference of the people to the flood warnings of Noah.

"After the ark was finished and representatives of every species of animals were safely in it, God withheld the flood for seven days, allowing the people a chance to repent, but they hardened their hearts," he said. "Then the flood came and, as the waters rolled higher and higher, the people came to the ark and pleaded to be taken in but God had closed the door."

"Thousands of people are acting in a similar manner. Warnings of a deluge of fire, which will sweep the world, have been given but they are unheeded. Only the few who obey His commands will be saved. When the rain of fire begins the gates of heaven will be closed to all the wicked and indifferent."

"A couple of big, hulking, lazy leeches, that's what we are! Especially 'ee'! Running up bills on you when we ought to be out working or something!"

"Tut, tut, nonsense." But she saw that he was pained. And then, warningly, "Shh! Your mother will hear. She has one of her headaches. Louise got her all upset talking about some kind of a job with the Associated Charities or the Community Chest or something on that order."

"It's about time one of us did something. Piling up the bills—'Oh, that!' he pushed the little pile of them out of sight, smiled at her with false brightness. 'That's nothing. I wouldn't feel I was a father if I didn't have a few bills. First think I know, though, some young fellow will have the job away from me, eh, baby?'"

Her heart leaped. She laid her cheek against his. "Maybe I've been thinking . . . papa, you won't mind?"

"Mind? Why, I want you to be happy—that's all." He fumbled for the clean, folded handkerchief he always kept in his coat pocket, and wiped his glasses, scowling at them critically.

"Pops, you old sweetheart, I knew you'd understand!" The Nancy's eyes were swimming. The torrent of words she had been holding back for words bubbled to her lips. "I've wanted to tell it for so long, and I haven't dared, and nobody would listen—mother or Louise—"

"What! Your mother wouldn't?"

"No, not really. You know how mama is. Just because it wasn't anyone she knew she wouldn't take it seriously and—"

Papa was beginning to get nervous. This wasn't what he had expected at all. He glanced apprehensively toward the kitchen door.

"Just because he's a ranger she won't believe that I'm really in love with him, and—"

"Shh! What's that your mother saying?"

"No, I don't think so. Pops, you wouldn't mind a ranger for a son-in-law, would you? He's wonderful looking. Nearly six feet, and brown as an Indian. It's funny, too, with his light hair and blue eyes. And ride! Anything with our legs. He's so strong he could pick me up with one hand. He has, for that matter. But he's the most—"

He stopped her at last. "Now, now, you don't want to lose your head over some fellow you met on a summer vacation. I suppose you met him this summer?"

"Yes, but it's no summer romance. From the first minute we met—"

"Shh! What would your mother say?"

He craned his neck over the frayed collar, looking anxiously toward the door. No sign of Kitty. He relaxed a little. Looked at his lovely daughter with love and pity. What a babe she was, getting all stirred up over some good looking cowpuncher. The fellow probably put an arm around her some moonlight night. He knew. He was a young man, not so long ago.

Tenderly he smiled at the quivering girl. So that's why you stayed away from your dad so long, eh? Having an affair with a cowpuncher, eh? Well . . . His manner changed. He became the bustling, garrulous Peter Hollenbeck they knew at the bank. "That's all right. But—that's not the kind of man to marry the Nancy. In three months the romance would be gone, and what would be left, eh?"

"Now you take any of the young men in business. Take Frank Hlaworth frizzle. Me's approximately three hundred per month." Papa dug a pencil out of his pocket, wrote neatly on the back of an old envelope, "$300."

"Not a great sum. But granting that you could save five hundred the first year, at four and a quarter per cent—"

Mama came in and set down. Picked up the book Nancy had been reading. "Anna Karenina . . . why do you read such outlandish things?" You fill your head with crazy ideas!"

Papa went on figuring. "Compounding the interest—"

Nancy continued to lean on the arm of his chair. The meaningless figures multiplied under her nose. She thought wildly of calling a taxi and starting back to the mountains tonight. But she was too tired and the family wouldn't believe it anyway. They'd think she was coming to see May Belle. Or the Porter girls.

What was the matter with them? Why couldn't they see what was going on all around them? Papa juggling bills, paying this one two dollars on the first, that one ten on the fifteenth. KNOW CHRIST, IS MISSION CHIEF'S ADVICE

Capt. B. F. Mountford In St. Stephen's Pulpit.

SPEAKS TWICE

Four Services Will Be Held on Sunday.

Urging a faith that is intelligent, genuine and comprehensive of a personal knowledge of Jesus Christ, studied acquaintance with the Holy Scriptures and the early custom of the family altar, Captain B. F. Mountford, of the Church Army, New York City, impressed a large audience at St. Stephen's Episcopal church mission last night.

He spoke twice. A period of song, directed by Captain W. E. F. Bugg, also of New York City, being given between discourses.

In his first part he spoke glowingly of the virtues and wealth of the Apostles' Creed, though on this occasion he confined himself to its initial section, "I believe in God the Father, maker of heaven and earth."

In the second, he stressed the need of return to activities which may feed the church has lost.

The scriptural lesson from Isaiah was read by Cadet W. H. Cochran, also of New York City. The benediction was pronounced by the Rev. C. K. Caulk, the rector.

Army Booklets Distributed. Church Army booklets containing hymns which are utilized in their meetings all over the country and in England, were distributed.

Announcement was made by Captain Rugg that the Mission will be continued on Sunday and all of next week. On Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock, a meeting will be held at the church when personal religion will be discussed.

In the morning at 10 o'clock, period of intercession was held at which Captain W. E. F. Bugg made an address. A service for young people was held in the late afternoon with an earlier one at 2:30 o'clock to a personal religion group.

"It is a shame on the part of the church," said Captain Mountford, "that a great many who are members of it do not know their Bible. You know where to find the editorials, sporting columns, market reports, fiction section and feminine departments in your daily papers but how many can tell where in the gospels is found the narrative of the Prodigal Son? I was told a few days ago in our training school in Providence, R. I., that it took a class there 10 minutes to find the Book of Luke in the Bible."

Steel Freighter Depere Beached After Striking Rock Near Cape Decision, Alaska

Radio Reports no Lives Lost in Shipwreck.

SEATTLE, Wash., Nov. 16.—(INS)—Salvage tugs were hurrying to the assistance of the steel freighter Depere today after the vessel struck a rock last night and was beached in sinking condition at Port McArthur, near Cape Decision, Alaska.

There was no loss of life, according to the report received by the harbor radio department, the only source of information concerning the shipwreck.

A bulletin received by the department stated that the Depere was sending out SOS signals after ramming the rock in the dark. Shortly afterward she was reported floundering toward shore and reached the beach without mishap to any of the members of her crew.

The Depere, a vessel of 3475 tons, was commanded by Capt. John Newland of Seattle and belonged to the Alaska Steamship company. Early yesterday a terrific storm was reported in the region where the Depere floundered. At that time fears were expressed for the safety of fishing boats and other craft. Reports from Alaska coast points described the gale as the most destructive in many years.

FRENCH TURN TO EXPRESSIVE YANKEE WORDS

Ham and Eggs, Kipper and Herring on Menu Now.

COCKTAILS, TOO

And It's Bath Now Instead of "Salle des Bains."

PARIS.—Even the good old French language is turning American, complains G. D. writing in L'Intransigent. He is referring to the many English words and expressions that are now being used by modern French men and women.

On many bills of fare in the French restaurants one reads ham and eggs, kippered herring, corned beef, sweet corn, Quaker Oats, pickles, plum pudding and cake (pronounced kake).

The smart Frenchman drinks cocktails (pronounced cocktails), cherry, American grogs and ne cakewalks, fox-trots, blues and shimmys. After dinner he goes to "musichall and sees the clowns, whoo-ah, ah," he and sisters.

Week-end trips with box-calf shoes, rowing, footing, pull-overs, sweaters, waterproofs, plaids, blunks and breeches are on the lips of every chic Parisian of the day. He also goes to his "tailor," taking the "fit" to the second floor and for shirts choose Oxford, Cambridge or poplin.

This modern wife no longer speaks of her "salle des bains," but takes a shower in her bathroom and then goes to her five o'clock tea while her maid cleans the house with a vacuum-cleaner.

People who live in glass houses manipulate actions and reflections. A celebrated Parisian of the day is now living in a house entirely constructed of glass and crystal, especially built for him.

"Everybody calls me an 'original' and is making fun of me," says the hair-dresser, "but I just wanted something different. I have a horror of things made in series and adore ideas, things, beads and even coffins pure as crystal."

The house is of purest glass with columns of crystal reflecting a beautiful purple light, the balconies of massive glass, a charming little bar with walls of colored glass. The bed of the coiffeur is also of the same material and will become his last resting place for he has made arrangements to have it transported to the magnificent tomb constructed for him by the sculptor Dunikowski.

If the ladies have come back to the city from their holiday haunts with a fine coat of tan, the men can boast beautiful beards which will keep them company during the cooler winter months.

Americans especially, seem to have gone in for this revived fashion for chin growth and are sporting the French beard in more than fifty-seven varieties. Beards are short and long, pointed in true Gallic fashion, soft and silk or bristly and bristly.

Some of them have a beautiful permanent wave; others are straight and flowing. A square, brown one has recently caused some little excitement among the Montparnasse colony.

Signs of an extremely severe winter are to be seen in the double provision of wax which is being made by a bees of the province of Doubs, according to one of the wags. And never before, he adds, has he seen such a profusion of berries on the winter-bearing trees, winter food for the birds.

Explosion Wrecks Still; Man Hurt. CINCINNATI, O., Nov. 16.—(INS)—An explosion was held accountable here today for the serious injury of a man and the unmasking of one of the largest stills ever uncovered in Hamilton county.

The injured man, Lutes Gooden, who, when treated at a local hospital, declared he had been shot, refuted his statement when police returned from the scene of the alleged shooting and reported that they found a building had been blown up, with a 250-gallon still in the wreckage.

KILLS HIMSELF

Robert M. Searle, president of the Rochester Gas & Electric Corporation, killed himself at his Rochester (N. Y.) home. Stock market losses, said to aggregate a million dollars, were blamed for his death.

Both of her legs were badly scalded and though authorities are of the firm belief that her death was an accident, they are at a loss to explain it.

It was surmised that the heater, which had been placed on a stand near the bath tub, had fallen into the water. The water was charged heavily with electricity. That too may have caused the water to reach the boiling degree.

Happiness Leads To Health, Wealth BOSTON.—To continue in good health, be cheerful.

That was the prescription for health advanced by Dr. Abraham Myerson, professor of Neurology at Tufts college, Medford.

"The health of the body can be altered by the mental attitude," he said. "A depression can disturb sleep, appetite and physical power."

"It thus becomes necessary for the man seeking the kind of mental vigor necessary for success to establish good bodily habits and to surround himself in so far as possible, with influences making for contentment and satisfaction. He must also seek to establish habits which prevent the using up of what we call vitality."

BUCYRUS, O., Nov. 16.—(INS)—Peculiar circumstances surrounded the death of Mrs. August Broemel, 65-year-old widow, whose body was found in a bathtub full of boiling water at her home here last night. It was learned from police today.

Boles' Eleven Picked to Edge Out New Concord Combine; Nine Buckeye Teams Finish Season.

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 16. — Five Ohio colleges have already rung their moleskin swan songs and tonight nine more gridiron choirs shall have joined the ever-swelling chorus.

Ashtand with its Ray Novotny combination, and Wilmington finished in a blaze of glory yesterday. Novotny and his teammates ran through Adrian of Michigan for a 58 to 7 triumph. The sparkling halfback was at his best last night and he galloped his way to six touchdowns. He is the leading individual scorer in Ohio with 107 points which is 39 more than has his closest rival, Wilmington drew a 13 to 0 win from Hanover, of Indiana. The Hoosiers had a fair forward wall, but their scoring punch was pitifully weak.

One of those things known as a medal victory goes to Capital which held defiance to a scoreless tie yesterday. Capital ended its season with two ties and the remainder defeats.

Rio Grande and Cedarville have already completed their pigskin antics, which, with Ashtand, Wilmington and Capital, make five colleges which have nothing but memories today and next year's.

Yale, Without Booth, to Face Tiger Rivals

Little Eli Star May See Little or no Action.

By Davis J. Walsh.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 16. — Older than sin itself, steeped in a half-century of tradition as enduring as a piece of fine, old lace, the Yale-Princeton football game will be taken out of its dusty niche, dusted off and placed on exhibition like a museum piece before a turn-away crowd of 80,000 this afternoon. The affair had promised to present two good shows for the price of one, namely, the football game and the weekly meeting of the anti-Booth society, a growing organization composed of football teams that have tried to restrain Albie Booth, the wonderful whiplip, from leading a trail to all American posterity.

But the second and perhaps better half of the program is not to be, it seems. The overnight word was that Booth would ride a charley horse up and down the sidelines and, frankly, without him, the event has almost the appearance of one show for the price of two. As Booth leaves the scene, much of its wallow leaves with him.

It was to have been almost the kid's last fight for a place on the all-American team, his duty to Lorn and Harker and McKiver; to Marsters, Welch, Berghorn, Glasgow, Pape, the Notre Dame horde and to the multitudinous field of all stars in general.

To Be Used in Emergency. Somehow, in spite of what they say, I don't think an entire afternoon can pass beyond the Yale bowl without seeing this amazing, little 144-pound sophomore taking some part. There is some comfort in the word of the coaches that he will be used in the event that a scoring emergency arises.

The funny thing about that is that it seems highly improbable that a scoring emergency will arise as long as Booth is out of the lineup. For Yale apparently can't play a great deal of football without him. The victim of a sort of Svengali and Trilby complex, it is a champ when he is on the field and a chump when he isn't.

The fact that he will be in there very little, if at all, is Princeton's great chance against a Yale team which at full strength, was its admitted superior. Yale had looked so plausibly the part of the probable winner that they were laying two dollars against one on the idea. But this price fell like a disappointed face when the Booth tidings were made public. He had pulled Yale out of the rough against Brown, Army and Dartmouth on successive Saturdays and only he, it seems, could figure to do the same against a Princeton team that probably will be seen in the traditional Princeton manner.

Tigers on Fighting Edge. It is a Princeton team that lost to Cornell and Brown and pulled out a fortuitous tie with the Navy. It is a team that is big, strong and uninspired. At best, that is the way it was. But a Princeton man, "Desire Under the Elms" is no idle phrase. Show him a New Haven elm and he goes into a tantrum that lasts all afternoon. The way those Tigers have been reacting to this stimulus for upward of ten years has almost been a case for the coroner.

So, even with Booth, Yale faced no sorcery party this afternoon. Without him, it faces the traditional fight to the finish, without any assurance as to whose it will be. Maybe Yale will be the Yale of those sensational last-half rallies of the last month. Maybe it will be merely the football team that lost to Georgia and was tied by Maryland. Either way, I doubt if posterity will be greatly served. It is an event, a spectacle, its value is heightened like that of any authenticated antique. It is a game, the outcome of which won't even affect sectional issues; yet history can't be so easily brushed aside.

season to look forward to as another milestone in their gridiron careers.

Five Ohio Teams Finish. Heidelberg, Wooster, Oberlin, Otterbein and Ohio Northern — will call it quits today.

Wooster, which holds an imposing record even though somewhat soiled by one defeat, will throw its last ounce of energy against a strong Muskingum team which has a perfect record in the Ohio conference. And a little private war may be waged during the classic Runyan, of Wooster, and McEwen, of Muskingum, both fullbacks, of sterling quality and both aspirants to the all-Ohio berth, will face each other. Grrrr!

Oberlin will engage Western Reserve in the former's own backyard. Both elevens are artists in upsetting the dopesters' buckets, so it would not be safe to predict the outcome.

The student princes of Heidelberg should finish gloriously against Ohio Northern. The result of the Hiram-Otterbein game at Westerville is a toss-up, though, because of past performances, the scribe is tended to give Hiram the edge.

Other teams which end their 1925 schedules today are Kent, Bluffton, Bowling Green and Findlay. There is no significant importance attached to any of those games.

Another Victim for Ohio U. Ohio university, whose Bobcats represent the strongest team in the state, excluding none, goes to Marietta to renew its rivalry with the college there. It will be a one-sided contest, probably, with the Bobcats on the favorable side.

Ohio Wesleyan will start its second-stringers against Cincinnati at Delaware. The battling Bishops are pointing themselves for their game with Army at West Point next Saturday. They should have no trouble in winning today's tiff.

Two other moleskin arguments, the St. Xavier-Oglethorpe contest and the Dayton-Quantico Marine's classic, should not be deprived of a portion of the limelight.

The complete schedule, with an attempt to pick the favorites, follows:

Bluffton vs. Findlay at Bluffton. (Findlay).
Bowling Green vs. Detroit C. C. at Bowling Green. (Bowling Green).
Case vs. Akron at Cleveland. (Akron).
Dayton vs. Quantico Marines at Dayton. (Dayton).
Kent vs. Baldwin Wallace at Kent. (Baldwin Wallace).
Marietta vs. Ohio University at Marietta. (Ohio University).
Miami vs. Denison at Oxford. (Miami).
Toledo vs. Michigan State Central Teachers. (Toledo).
Muskingum vs. Wooster at New Concord. (Wooster).
Oberlin vs. Western Reserve at Oberlin.
Ohio Northern vs. Heidelberg at Ada. (Heidelberg).
Ohio State vs. Kenyon at Columbus. (Ohio State).
Ohio Wesleyan vs. Cincinnati at Delaware. (Ohio Wesleyan).
Otterbein vs. Hiram at Westerville. (Hiram).
St. Xavier vs. Oglethorpe at Cincinnati. (Oglethorpe).
Washington and Jefferson vs. Wittenberg at Washington, Pa. (W and J).
Michigan State vs. John Carroll at East Lansing. (John Carroll).
Wilberforce vs. Kentucky State at Xenia. (Kentucky State).

TIGERS TO PLAY PRELIM GAME

Golden Star Tigers will clash with the Sherwood Independents tomorrow afternoon at Sherwood gridiron. The game will be staged as a preliminary to the battle between the East Liverpool Pros and the Tarentum (Pa.) Firemen, and will start at 1 p. m.

Tigers' game with the High School Reserves, scheduled for last Thursday, was postponed until next Wednesday.

Wittenberg May Be Fired From Big Six

Charges to be Filed at Conference Nov. 26.

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 16. — Athletic relations between Wittenberg college and three other members of the Buckeye conference are reported to be severely strained today, so much so that the rumors say the Springfield school will be dropped from the "Big Six" after the 1925-26 basketball season. There is little likelihood that the Buckeye conference will split up, however, according to the reports. Miami, Denison and Ohio university are said to be the schools at odds with Wittenberg. The annual meeting of the association will be held here November 25 and those universities are expected to make specific charges against Wittenberg. It is known that charges of subsidizing athletes were made against the Lutherans at the last meeting of the association. Ohio Wesleyan and Cincinnati, the other members of the "Big Six," have made no protests against Wittenberg and those schools are on friendly terms. Even though Wittenberg should become an "outlaw" team, it is reported that the conference will continue with only five members, or perhaps substitute Dayton or St. Xavier in Wittenberg's place. The reports were substantiated somewhat by the statement of Dr. R. Edward Tulloss, president of Wittenberg college, who declared: "Wittenberg has stayed in the Buckeye association for the last two years, notwithstanding strong pressure upon her to withdraw. That the Buckeye Athletic association may have an interesting meeting November 25 is quite likely. Much more, however, will be before the association than the matters mentioned in the reports." From that last sentence, it was intimated by the president that Wittenberg may prefer a few charges of its own against the other schools.

Belmont Hangs Up 11th Straight Win

Mason's Welterweight Star, Who Fights Thursday in Wellsville, Triumphs Over Gene Reed.

Jimmy Belmont, brilliant Pittsburgh welterweight, who is scheduled to box for Matchmaker Ray Foutts at the Valley A. C. Wellsville, next Thursday night, last night hung up his eleventh consecutive victory since joining the stable of James "Red" Mason, Smoky City pilot.

Belmont, slated to tangle with Roger Brooks, Cleveland star, in his Wellsville debut, copied a three-way decision over Gene Reed in 10 rounds at Moose temple but came away with an injured right paw.

It was the eleventh straight victory for Belmont. Last night an advantage of some five pounds in weight did not handicap Jimmy a bit but helped him in the clinches. When he elected to box, Jimmy made Reed look foolish but when he tried to slug him he found a willing exponent facing him as Gene refused to do much backing up and as a result several clenchers occurred that rocked both fighters at different times.

Reed's right hand roundhouse curve found a spot on Belmont's face in the fifth and sixth rounds and forced the Braddock lad to break ground. But Belmont once stung, resorted to his left jab and this helped keep Gene at a distance.

Belmont captured at least six rounds, and handed Gene a badly cut mouth. The fans got a kick out of seeing Gene spit gore all over Jimmy's shoulders, on a few occasions. That Reed was a sucker for Belmont's rapid left was plainly evident, the Fayette City lad having no defense against this blow. Belmont's left hook also found a connecting point on Gene's face when Jimmy cut it loose.

In the last two rounds Gene tried to spurt, but there was Belmont and that tantalizing left to stop him in his endeavor to flop over a punch that might be the way of something new to topple Jimmy. These flurries on the part of Reed only brought Belmont's two hands into play and there was little comment made on the decision of the officials upon conclusion of the bout.

Belmont injured his right hand in the seventh round, the punching him being badly swollen after the bout, but he showed little evidence of the injury during the last three rounds.

Purdue Fighting For Title

120,000 to See Notre Dame, Trojans in Chicago.

CHICAGO, Nov. 16. — Confident and ready, Notre Dame and Southern California, the giants of the 1925 football world, today awaited their intersectional clash before 120,000 spectators.

And not many miles away an eager Purdue eleven was waiting to prove its claim to the Western conference championship by bowling a blood-thirsty Iowa horde out of the road.

It's not only a matter of central states against far western in the Notre Dame-Trojan act, but a contest of types of football as well. This afternoon's gridiron classic matches the terrific driving power of the westerners against the clever and speedy style of play taught by Knute Rockne.

Roughly speaking, it is a match between high explosives and several varieties of lightning.

Minnesota, Ohio State, Wisconsin and Illinois are ready to say that if Purdue turns back the vengeful Iowa crew this afternoon the Boilermakers are entitled to the crown they have been seeking for three long decades.

A grim determination has marked Purdue's preparation for this all important struggle, and if they are tripped up as Minnesota was last week, it will not be because of neglect or carelessness. Two of the toughest lines in the middle west are going to decide the matter, and Purdue's wonder backfield is expected to turn the trick.

At Minneapolis a rejuvenated Michigan team is about to trade violence with Minnesota before 60,000 persons. Illinois and Chicago are attempting to settle an annual difference at Champaign, and Northwestern and Indiana are entertaining at Evanston, Ill.

Irish-U. S. C. Tilt to Draw 120,000

CHICAGO, Nov. 16. — The near-record football throng of 120,000 spectators were gathered at Soldier Field here today for the intersectional gridiron classic of the year between the University of Southern California and Notre Dame.

Both teams are practically at top strength on the field. Edelson may be missing from the Southern California lineup.

The power of the west coast aggression is expected to force Coach Knute Rockne's hand to the point of giving all the Irish possesses offensively.

Grand Billiards grabbed first place in the Liberty "B" duckpin circuit last night, winning three in a row from the Libertys. Jimmy Wurzel shot a 545, a new three-game mark; the Grands rolled up 517 to offset former figures for a single three-man team games and amassed a grand total of 1,426, also a new league record.

Kirkham Anderson Don Tog

Former High Sta Boost Strength of Local Eleven.

NEARING the close of one of the most successful seasons ever enjoyed by any East Liverpool grid squad, the East Liverpool Pros clash tomorrow afternoon at Sherwood with the Tarentum (Pa.) Firemen, who will appear in the uniform of the Pros in Sunday's battle.

And Jack Johnson, husky youngster who was with the high school eleven the forepart of the present season, may be seen in action one of the halfback positions.

One game, or possibly, a series of games may be played with the Midland professionals in the near future, depending upon the outcome of negotiations with the Steel Company which also can boast of successful seasons to date.

Coach Chap Finley of the Pros today instructed his Pros to do uniforms at home and report at 11 P. M. to B. Dresden avenue, at 2 P. M. Sunday. The Tarentum squad will make its headquarters in the Veterans of Foreign Wars' home at Lincoln avenue.

$25,000 FIRE HITS MIDLAND OIL TANK JOB PRAYER URGED BY PASTOR

RITER-CONLEY CO. EQUIPMENT IS DESTROYED

Lack of Water Handicaps Steel City Firemen.

TANKS EXPLODE

Overheated Stove in Frame Building Blamed.

MIDLAND, Pa., Nov. 16.—Damage estimated at $25,000 was caused at 6:30 o'clock last night by fire which destroyed a one-story frame structure air-working tools, our compressors, eight acetylene tanks and a water pumper of the Riter-Conley Construction which is erecting storage tanks on the Standard Oil property east of Midland. An overheated stove is blamed for the blaze.

Midland volunteer firemen were handicapped by lack of water. The nearest fire hydrant was 500 yards away. Chemicals were used to save a small frame building, used as an office. Firemen also saved a gasoline pump and tank. Tractors used in grading the tract of land were driven out under their own power.

Acetylene and oxygen tanks and small quantities of gasoline and oil exploded, sending flames into the air and driving the firemen back. High power lines also endangered the men.

MIDLAND, Pa., Nov. 16.—Alfred C. T. Li, Chicago, Ill., author, stud-ent and political economist, cited social, political and religious his-tory and present-day attitudes of China at the dinner meeting of the Rotary club Thursday night in the Midland hotel.

"China's nationalistic develop-ments have been delayed by the many foreign powers who for years have exploited the country for com-mercial gains," I said.
